Taft Sees U. S. Sales Tax as Major Issue

LEVY CITED AS CHECK ON INFLATION

Ohio Senator Calls It Way To Help Meet Vast War Expenditures.

SUBSIDY REVIVAL DUE

Six Big Questions Expected To Come Up When Congress Reconvenes In Fall.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., O.) today intimated that sales tax legislation probably will head up a seven point program of major issues when congress reconvenes.

Advocate of a sales tax as high as 10 per cent, Taft returned to the Capital to put in a week or two of work on tax problems before leaving for a vacation in Canada where he may also take some time to study the Dominion's war time tax structure.

"We can't win this war without money any more than without men," Taft said. "Besides, a retail sales tax on all items except food would discourage spending of swollen war-time incomes and help to prevent the worst kind of inflation."

Asked whether he felt the kind of sales tax adopted by Ohio was likely to be proposed, he parried the question but said he thought California's tax was better.

"It seems to produce more revenue," Taft explained.

In addition to tax legislation, Taft cited the following matters as heading up the list of major congressional problems:

1. Revival of the Commodity Credit Corporation along with the question of subsidy payments and whether, if subsidies are paid, they shall be handled through the CCC or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

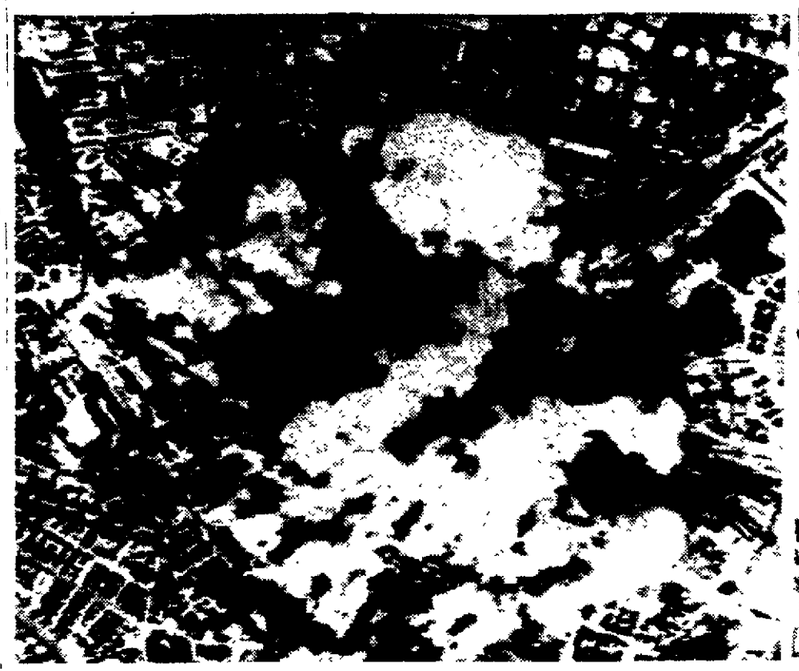

2. Legislation to give the Office of Economic Warfare legislative status, at the same time specifying and defining its powers.

3. Inquiry into the commitments already made with other nations by the board of economic warfare, headed by Vice President Henry A. Wallace until his removal by President Roosevelt.

4. Possible broad legislation

First Bombers of Rome - - Their Target In Flames

Great accuracy of the American bombing raid on Rome is attested by the photo at left, which shows great clouds of smoke billowing up from the San Lorenzo railroad yards in the heart of the "Eternal City." The tracks leading into the yards can be seen at upper right, but the yards themselves are hidden in the smoke and flame. Honor of piloting the lead ship in the first formation of Flying Fortresses to attack Rome goes to Col. Sam Gormley, left in photo at right, of Alhambra, Calif., who is pictured after his return from the mission as he talked it over with his bombardier, First Lieut. Fred G. Wheeler, who dropped the first bombs. These are Northwest African Air Forces photos radioed by the U. S. Army Signal Corps.

Credit State Equalization For Draft Call Reductions

Sharp reductions in Richland county's draft quotas for July and August were credited today by board clerks to an equalization process rather than a general slackening of the induction pace.

The Richland county quotas for July dropped as low as one-fifth of the June figures for Board 1, about half the June quota for Board 2, and one-third for Board 3.

Although there will be a slight increase for all three boards in August, the number of men the county will be required to send to training centers next month will be far below the totals for the winter and spring months.

Board clerks said that they had received no information indicating that the rate of induction of men into service would be lowered despite reports that the army already has nearly enough men.

Clerks said they believed the quotas for Richland county for the two summer months have dropped because other sections of the state have more registrants without children, and selective service officials want to keep the counties on an even basis, if possible, so one section won't be inducting family men while another still has a supply of single registrants.

The Richland board clerks said they are filling their July quotas from 18-year-old registrants, married men who have not been living with their families, and single or childless married men who previously were deferred for occupational reasons.

With the three-week furlough period in effect now, the Richland county men who are accepted for military service this month won't start their training until early in August.

Board 1 sent a group of men to Columbus today for examinations and induction, while the Board 2 registrants were examined Monday and the Board 3 group last Saturday.

BABY KILLED AS CAR HITS TREE

Suffers Skull Fracture When Thrown Against Windshield With Mother at Wheel.

BUTLER—Thrown against the windshield of an automobile driven by his mother when it left the road and struck a tree, three-months old David Leroy Oswalt, jr., son of Mr and Mrs David Oswalt, died Tuesday at 1 p m at Mansfield General hospital. Death was attributed to a fractured skull.

When the accident occurred, the baby was riding in the front seat of the car with his mother and a cousin, Barbara Oswalt, 18. Mrs. Oswalt said she lost control of the automobile, causing it to leave the road.

The child was taken to the hospital in a Butler ambulance. Mrs. Oswalt was treated for face lacerations. The girl escaped injury.

Surviving besides the parents are the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Oswalt, Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perry, Freewater, Ore. The three were driving to Mr. and Mrs. Oswalt's home when the accident occurred.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. at the George funeral home in Butler with Rev. W. A. Hewitt, pastor of Butler Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in Bunker Hill cemetery.

Urges City Speed Its Share Of Federal Airport Project

Urging the city to avoid any "unnecessary delay" in acquiring land for the proposed airport expansion and meeting the government requirements for the project, the Chamber of Commerce legislative committee today advised city officials to use surplus funds as far as possible for buying the land and to issue bonds for the remaining amount.

The recommendations were included in a letter to Mayor W. J. Locke and City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner from Atty. C. H. Huston as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee.

Because the city hasn't determined how much the required 1,000 acres of land will cost, the committee specified no amounts to be transferred for the purchase and mentioned no city funds from which the money might be taken.

City officials are convinced, however, that the general fund will have to supply the bulk of the funds for buying the land, and Auditor Paul L. Kelley said he believed $60,000 could safely be used from that fund without hindering city operations. Mayor Locke placed the probable limit of expenditure from the general fund at $50,000, but added that council's finance committee would have to decide how much it wants to draw from the general fund for the airport.

The mayor said he would turn the Chamber of Commerce committee's recommendations over to the council finance committee today, urging that a meeting be called promptly to take action on the airport financing problem.

The Chamber of Commerce group urged "careful study of the condition of city funds" before council acts to buy the land, but added that the committee did not desire to usurp the power of city

Duce Begs for More Aid From Hitler, Report

Axis Conference Hints Fears Of Blow At Italy Itself, Soon

(By Associated Press)

BERN — Informed diplomatic circles expressed belief today that Premier Mussolini had made an urgent appeal to Adolf Hitler for more help in the defense of his gravely threatened country when the Axis partners met Monday somewhere in northern Italy—perhaps Verona.

These sources agreed that immediate events in the battle of Sicily had prompted the conference, which apparently was held as American bombers pounded Rome, but most of them felt that the situation in Italy itself was the main topic of discussion.

In reaching this conclusion they pointed to recent Axis statements hinting that both Germany and Italy already regard the defense of Sicily as a lost cause.

The observers reasoned that if the Axis has given up hope of holding the island the next line of defense must be on the Italian mainland and that ways and means must be found of withdrawing the remnants of the Sicilian force and reorganizing to resist an Allied landing.

Obviously, informed sources said, one of the big problems of effective resistance to the Allies is air power. They pointed out that even the Axis press had acknowledged Allied air superiority in the Sicilian theater, while the Allies have reported only negligible resistance to their aerial assaults.

Military observers estimate the Axis has 5,000 to 6,000 planes in combat on all European fronts. Of this approximately 1,800 to 2,100 are said to be fighter planes, backed up by reserve of unknown quantity.

They agreed that if the Allies were to be quarantined on Sicily and the Italian mainland saved by an effective delaying action on the island this reserve must be thrown into the battle.

They pointed out, however, that the question was a tough one for Hitler, since it is upon the Ger-

Allies Now Hold Half Of Sicily, British Still Squeeze Port

BULLETIN

LONDON —(U.P.)— The Algiers radio said today that Catania now is being attacked from all sides and is expected to fall "at any moment."

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Enna, defense prop of central Sicily, has been captured by American and Canadian troops, it was announced today, forcing a general withdrawal of Axis forces from the central and western areas of the island.

British Eighth army troops closing in upon Catania, key to eastern Sicily, have shattered still another desperate German counterattack with "very heavy casualties" and continued to squeeze in upon the seaport.

For all tactical purposes, half of Sicily is now in Allied hands.

Enna's capture left the Axis commanders with but one east-west highway along the north coast and an eastward movement of all troops was observed. It appeared a general withdrawal to the northeastern tip of Sicily had begun.

There, in the Messina area, the last stand and perhaps evacuation presumably will be staged.

The fall of Enna threw the whole Axis communication system in Sicily in jeopardy, and quick collapse of resistance in the west and central areas was threatened.

(Rome announced Enna had been evacuated.)

The town controls the main highway and railroad lines running east and west across the mountainous island, and its thus cuts the German defenders of Catania off from contact with Italian forces in the west.

These Italian troops have been yielding ground rapidly and surrendering in huge numbers. Most of the German troops apparently are concentrated in the Catania area, battling desperately to hold the Eighth army from sealing off

14,000 MAILED

New Gas Ration Books Go Out; Use Them Tomorrow.

Approximately 14,000 new "A" gasoline coupon books will have been mailed by tonight to motorists who had their renewal applications in to the ration board by Monday, Charles Beelman, chairman of the ration board, announced today.

The No. 7 "A" coupons are valid beginning tomorrow for two months, the same length of time as the No. 6 coupons, he said. They are figured on the average of one coupon a week.

Applicants for gasoline for farm and tractor use are to apply at the AAA office at 78½ North Diamond street rather than at the local ration board, Beelman also announced.

License number of the car for which the "A" book was issued must be written on the face of the coupon according to a new ruling.

COLUMBUS (AP) All Ohioans except those whose applications were in error will have their new No. 3 ration books within the next few days, Office of Price Administration officials said today.

The OPA set today as the deadline for mailing approximately 7,000,000 books but a shortage of volunteer workers made it impossible to complete the job on time, said M. A. Pixley, district OPA administration officer.

He estimated that if sufficient volunteers reported most of the work would be finished by Friday, except for handling "thousands" of war ration book applications which were filled out improperly.

SECOND ALERT

City To Get New Air Raid Test In Daylight Next Week.

Second surprise daylight air raid alert in the Mansfield area is scheduled for next week when state civilian defense officials will again check the effectiveness of the home defense mobilization in northcentral Ohio.

In announcing the test, Mayor W. J. Locke, Mansfield OCD chairman, said the city was praised for its response in the test two weeks ago, but confusion in sounding the alarm was reported in other areas in this area.

The test is expected to bring civilian defense workers into action and halt motor and pedestrian traffic. Since it is scheduled for daylight, it will not affect persons in homes or business places.

Legislator Recalls FDR Demand of Disputing Aids.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Richard B. Wigglesworth, R., Mass., wanted to know today whether Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes' latest speech was accompanied by his resignation.

He referred to an address in New York yesterday in which Ickes defended Washington "bureaucrats" but suggested that those who thought the war effort was being bungled should blame dollar-a-year business men who, he said, were running the war.

Wigglesworth referred to President Roosevelt's recent note to all department heads to refrain from airing disputes in the press, but that if they felt that they must to send him his resignation at the same time.

6,000 In City Facing Loss Of Right To Ballot

More than 6,000 Mansfielders must register if they want to vote in the city election in November, Philip Wolfe, county election board secretary, said today.

Wolfe said that 6,200 cards had been "pulled" from the files because the owners had failed to vote in a general election in the past two years.

Wolfe said only 18,300 Mansfielders are registered on the poll books now, while the average registration is 19,000. With the elimination of the primary election the registration deadline has been extended from July 12 to Oct. 4 or 28 days before the election, Nov. 2.

The election board office, first floor of the courthouse, is open Monday through Friday from 8 to 11:30 a. m. and from 12:30 to 4 p. m. and Saturday from 8 a. m. to noon for registering voters.

By action of the board the office will also be open from 6 to 9 p. m. during the week of Sept. 28 to Oct. 2 to register defense workers who can not register during the day. On Oct. 4, the final registration day, the office will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

RUSSIA: Soviets Fighting On 400-Mile Front, Circling Orel

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Russian troops drove in behind Orel to within less than five miles of the Bryansk railroad today, practically immobilizing the only line for evacuation or reinforcement of the hard-pressed German base.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Fighting along the Russian front spread to the southern Donets and Mius river sectors yesterday as Red army troops recaptured town after town in their drive to encircle the Germans at Orel on the central front, the Russians reported today.

Russian armies thus were on the move on a front extending some 400 miles south from Orel to a point southwest of Voroshilovgrad, where the Soviet midnight communique said Russian forces had crossed the Mius river, improving their positions.

Heaviest fighting still raged, however, in the vicinity of Orel, where the Soviet army was closing in around the German supply base. Advances of from four to six miles were reported during the day's fighting which saw the Germans hurl ten more futile counterattacks in an effort to halt the Russian advance.

Among the towns captured by the Russians, said a special bulletin, was Mtsensk, 31 miles northeast of Orel. The same Russian column was reported pushing on to the west.

The Red army force operating directly east of Orel meanwhile,

PACIFIC: Yanks Sink 3 More Jap Warships, Damage 3 Others

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—American bombers were credited today with sinking a cruiser and two destroyers of a Japanese convoy attempting vainly to run the Allied sea and air blockade around the big Munda airbase in the Solomons.

A force of three light cruisers, six destroyers and two transports, undoubtedly seeking to aid the hardpressed garrison at Munda, was spotted by Catalina flying boats shortly after midnight yesterday in Vella gulf just west of Kolombangara island.

The Catalinas followed the convoy until strong formations of Liberators, Mitchells and Avenger bombers arrived with bombs which blasted at least three warships to the bottom and sent the remainder fleeing or limping northward.

A third destroyer was listed as probably sunk, and a transport and yet another destroyer were damaged.

Four bombers were lost—two Mitchells and two Avengers.

The action, described in today's communique from the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, served to maintain steady pressure on Munda, big airbase on New Georgia island, which has been hit by land, sea and air attack since the southwest Pacific offensive started on July 1.

Supply or reinforcement of Munda has been rendered "dangerous and difficult," the communique said, and "a slow but constant deterioration of his (the enemy's) beleaguered garrison can be expected unless our blockade ring can be broken."

National Beer Shortage Seen As Farmers Hold Back Corn

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A national beer shortage loomed today as War Production Board officials expressed concern over failure of brewers to secure corn because farmers are holding their supplies in hopes of obtaining a higher ceiling price from the OPA.

Corn, a vital beer ingredient, is not moving from the farms, officials said, because the ceiling price is $1.07 a bushel, while if it is fed to hogs farmers get the equivalent of $1.25 to $1.40 a bushel, because of higher ceilings on hig prices.

According to government beverage experts, brewers have now come to the point where their output must be sharply curtailed or stopped entirely, unless the jam in the corn market is broken.

Until early this month, it was learned, brewers had succeeded in producing the same quantity of beer as during 1942, despite a WPB order curtailing the amount of malt which could be consumed.

The curtailment order, effective March 1, provided that brewers could use a maximum of 93 per cent of the malt they used for beer making in 1942.

However, greater amounts of corn grits and rice were utilized by brewers as a "malt stretcher" and they succeeded in meeting 100 per cent of last year's production.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"BUT BEFORE we begin checking," my father said, addressing Olga with his delightful, deferential courtesy, "may I tell you once more, dear lady, how desolated I am at not being able to grant your very natural request to go with your daughter upon this errand? Please believe me, Olga, that if it had been possible, I would gladly have permitted it."

"Please do not think of it again," Olga replied. "I realize now how impossible the request was, and I know that Olina will be as safe in your care as is humanly possible."

She stopped, then went on with a hint of huskiness in her voice.

"And, my dear Charles, if anything unforseen should happen, we wish you to know that we never shall dream of blaming you, and I pray that I may be as good a soldier as my daughter is today."

Madge Is Touched.

There was something in the way she spoke which not only brought the traditional lump into my throat but which made me realize the reason for the love and homage which had been Olga's when she had been queen of Transvania.

"You never were anything else," my father assured her, "and, while one must always steel one's self for the thousandth chance, I think that is all Olina is risking today."

"I am sure of it," Olga declared, and then she rose with decision.

"We shall only complicate matters if we stay longer," she said. "Olina must think of nothing now but the task before her, so Philip and I will go back to our apartment."

She turned to her daughter, and with a gesture at once regal and maternal, drew Olina into her arms.

"Au revoir, my darling," she said tenderly. "Obey Mr. Spencer implicitly."

She kissed Olina warmly, as did her husband. And then they were gone, and my father was speaking quickly, insistently.

Olina Gets Instructions.

"Until the time for you to go to the bank, you will remain here with Brs. Bickett. I will come for you when it is time, and will take you down to a taxi of my own selection in which there will be one of my guards. The bank officials will be expecting you, and will hurry through the delivery of the cash, which, of course, you will put into the bag you are carrying.

"This transaction will take place in a private room of the bank to which you will be conducted immediately upon your arrival. Thus there will be no scrutiny of you by curious eyes.

"Two bank guards will escort you to the taxi, and one of them will join you in it," my father continued. "Just before you draw up to the door of the hotel, both guards will get out, so that you will appear to arrive alone. They will be near by, however, watching you, and they will give the signal at the door to the guards in plain clothes, appearing to be guests, who will be stationed in the lobby. One of these, at least, will be close to you, when Ruth Hayes—I am quite sure she is the woman who summoned you—accosts you. Two others will get into the elevator, and one of them will get off at the seventeenth floor which she has named as the rendezvous.

Help at Hand.

"She may ask you to go into her room," added my father. "My daughter, disguised as a chambermaid, will be on the floor near you, and if the woman attempts to take your arm and force you into the room, call 'Maid!' loudly. Not only my daughter, but the guards hidden on the floor will be at your side in an instant."

He stopped abruptly. "I think that is all. Margaret, it is time for you to go."

I donned my outer garments for my trip to the hotel where I was to guard Olina, and Dicky made himself ready to escort me.

"The guards are already in the hotel," my father said, "and I am sending a man with you whom Ruth Hayes has never seen. When you get near the hotel, have this man get out, go to the manager's office and deliver this note.

He handed Dicky a note, my husband put it into his wallet, and my father went on speaking.

"The manager will make sure that no woman has registered for the seventeenth floor, or that if Ruth Hayes is already there, she is safely in her room. The elevators will be so manipulated that you and Richard will be taken to your floor without any chance of her seeing you. There Halloran will meet you, and, as I told you before, when he has finished, a woman will come up, provide you with equipment and instruct you in your duties. From then on, you will be on your own."

"You feel certain, Dad," Dicky queried deferentially, "that Ruth Hayes is the woman who will demand the money?"

"I shall be very much surprised and disappointed if she isn't," my father replied. "But as there has been no trace so far of any other woman in that espionage organization, I think I am justified in expecting her to make her appearance at that hotel today."

"Well," Dickey said when we had bidden farewell to Katherine and my father, who were to wait for Olina, and were out in the corridor. "Here's hoping we see her, but she doesn't see us! Where do you suppose that guard of Dad's is?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

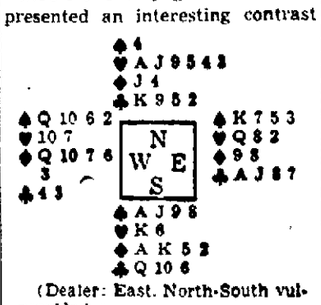

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ONE DECIDING FACTOR

Success or failure of a close contract depends often on one deciding factor. In some cases it is a move by the declarer. In others, it is one by a defender. Rich indeed, in bridge lore, is the player who generally can recognize these crucial points as they arrive. If he can be sure and dependable on these fundamental things in the run of the mill hands, he can afford to let his opponents be better on making the fancy plays which delight the admirer of the spectacular.

More profitable was the bidding where South started with 1-Diamond and the side wound up at 4-Hearts, which produces an extra trick if the clubs are guessed right and the contract anyway if they are not. But two tables where No Trump games were bid presented an interesting contrast in results, though at each West led the club 4.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT

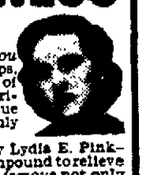

South at both tables played a low club from dummy and, as it developed, the entire outcome depended on what East now did. In one case he played the J. South won with the Q, scored the heart K and finessed the J to the Q. East returned the spade 3 to the 8 and 10, then West led the club 3. The K was put on. East taking it with the A to block the dummy from running the hearts but South put the club 10 under that. When the spade 5 was led then, South scored with the A, led the club to the 9, ran four hearts left in the dummy and finished with the diamond tops, making an extra trick.

At the other table, when dummy put the 2 on the club lead, East played the 8. He very carefully retained his J to "sit over" the 9, and his A to be ready to overtake the K. Now see if you can bring in that heart suit, or find any other way to take nine tricks in South's position. East saw that his single job was to block re-entry to the hearts and by concentrating on that crucial factor he made defeat for the declarer certain.

JEFF DAVIS STILL SELLING

ROANOKE, Va. — (UP) — Jeff Davis, "King of Hoboes," is still going strong selling bonds. He recently passed through Roanoke on his tour that will take him all over the country. In 1942 Davis sold $2,000,000 in war bonds, serving as a volunteer minute man with a commission from Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr. This is only a starter, however, because during World war I Davis sold $20,000,000 touring with the mayor's committees.

MECHANICAL SWEEPSTAKES BOOST OUTPUT

'Race' Pool at Chicago Plant Steps Up Production By 10 Per Cent.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—The "rail birds" at the Chain Store Products corporation, plant whispered today that Shangri-La, a mechanical thoroughbred was a sure thing in the fifth. Form charts proved it a pacemaker in the factory sweepstakes that have boosted production 10 per cent.

Shangri-La looks like a 20-ton screw machine turning out parts of a fuse the firm is making for the army. Its operator will swear, however, that it's a spanking good gelding.

Such is the pleasant fiction the boys are kicking around to make war work more amusing and faster. Most of the operators at the factory have baptized their machines with the names of horses, and they race them every day.

"Production is up 10 per cent because of this," said Mrs. Sol H. Goldberg, president. And that's without counting increased production due to the company's incentive plan."

It began with a careless government inspector. He erred in crediting an operator with producing too many parts one day. Some of the other operators, noticing his production figure, asked how come.

"Oh, I just got a swell old horse here," he grinned, patting his machine.

"Huh! I got a swell bang-tail myself," another grunted.

With that, the men decided to name their machines and race them against one another. So they chalked the names of horses on the steel flanks of the mechanical steeds—names such as Shangri-La, the Gremlin, Man O' War, Jr., War Admiral.

Four operatorse tend four separate machines turning out the same part for the fuse. Every morning they organize a pool of $5, each man contributing $1.25. Every afternoon the pot is distributed as follows: Win, $3; place, $1.50; show, 50 cents.

Other groups of operators at machines producing different parts do the same thing, which means that throughout the entire plant make-believe ponies are galloping like mad to win not only the pot but also the battle of production.

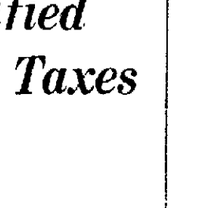

As evidence of how seriously the men take their horseracing, Mrs. Goldberg told of the operator who arrived at the plant early so he could lay out his tools and get his "horse" off to a smart start.

"Betting or anything else that increases production," she said, is ok with the management."

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa -(By Wireless)—Already a large number of heavy bombers had been over Rome when we got there. As we turned in from the sea to run down from the north we could see off on our right rolling clouds of smoke being blown from a target—the work of the bombers ahead of us.

Ten minutes later our group of Flying Fortresses was rushing down the bomb run over the same target. Because of the controversy that might easily develop over this air attack on Rome I made it my special business to watch as closely as I could. I was in the nose of the plane with the bombardier.

Clapper

Particularly I watched out of my righthand window, for on that side lay the Vatican, just across the winding Tiber. Actually it was three to four miles away. We could not possibly have hit it without making a special detour to do so.

No accident could have caused bombs to drop even near the Vatican. I saw the Coliseum and the ruins of the Forum also, completely in the clear, racing along on my right. Several churches, especially marked on the pilot's charts, also were out of my right window and they were all clear. I emphasize this because Axis propagandists can easily distort facts about this raid. Several newspaper correspondents were invited to accompany the mission so that they might give independent testimony.

The impressive thing about the raid on Rome was the pitiful opposition encountered. This parade of Allied bombers, heavies and mediums with escorting P-38s, were making bomb runs over the heart of Rome for hours. This was, you might say, a triumphal procession, marking the new age of air which is destined to change many things in this world.

Mussolini must have recognized this Allied parade of devastating air power as an omen of doom. Romans of old looked to the heavens for portents. New portents are there in the sky for Romans and their Allies of today to see.

We saw only two enemy fighters in the air. It was just after our bombs were dropped. One came flying past us on our right. He was not heading for us, he was just chasing on home, it seemed. Our bombardier and navigator swung their machine guns at him and there was a terrific din for a few seconds in our nose compartment. Other guns in the formation opened up and the little enemy fighter raced by under a shower of red tracers and escaped. The same thing happened on our left side a few minutes later.

The bombardier, Lt. Charles P. Gough, of Denver, said they probably were both ME 109s but evidently flown by Italians.

Then we saw flak. I had been hearing about flak for a long time but this was a poor specimen, so our crew told me. We saw black puffs up ahead. Some of them got up a little above our altitude which was about 25,000 feet. It looked like a barrage of it just ahead of us as we were running for the bomb drop point but it never hit any of us. It was set too far ahead or broke too low. Our crew said it was not good aiming or fuse setting.

That was all there was to the enemy opposition. The whole Allied show, carefully arranged over a period of months, went clocking off on schedule. We were back over our field 15 minutes ahead of our estimated time of arrival, fixed when we left hours earlier. No ships were lost, not a man injured so far as I have heard from the other formations. This raid says Italy is through.

Our Fortress had bombs to drop at the extreme right hand corner of the railroad yards. For days the air force command had been working out bomb charts. All crews were given a map and enlarged air photographs with the Vatican and other religious institutions marked out. The Vatican had a large white line drawn around it. Each of several such locations had a warning in large letters: "Must on no account be damaged."

At briefing the crews were told not to drop bombs if there was any doubt or if the target was obscured to the slightest degree by clouds or smoke. The command had been conscious of its responsibility in this matter. It considered Rome a military target because it was a bottle neck for rail traffic from Germany through Brenner Pass to southern Italy and Cicily.

TAKE BABY BOY HOME, FIND IT'S REALLY A GIRL

Parents Sue Hospital For $500,000; Impossible Operation Revealed.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Her $500,000 damage suit filed, Mrs. Lorraine Marie Hardwig left for a fortnight in the country today to recover from the shock of discovering that the baby she took home from the maternity ward was a girl instead of a boy.

Her baby's arm was stamped, "Sex: male," Mrs. Hardwig said, and its birth certificate said Richard Allen Hardwig. She even paid for an operation which could not possibly have been performed on the little girl they brought home, she said.

Dr. J. M. Andrews, who attended the birth, signed the certificate and suggested the operation as a good thing for all little boys, said he had nothing to say.

The hospital, named as a defendant with Dr. Andrews and various nurses and attendants, had little more to say. "There must be a mistake somewhere," an attache was quoted. Mrs. Hardwig and her husband, Harry James Hardwig, a wholesale liquor dealer, agreed.

Their suit alleged permanent abduction.

According to the damage suit, however, the hospital claimed there was no "abduction"—and that there never was a little boy Hardwig. The hospital contends the Hardwigs have their own child, but that it was a girl instead of a boy, the suit said. As for the fee for the operation, the hospital claimed it was a clerical error.

Baby Hardwig appeared at the South Hoover hospital June 27. At that time, Hardwig said, the doctor and attending nurse came from the delivery room and said "Congratulations. You have a fine big boy."

On July 3, about a week after the arrival of the Junior Hardwig, Mrs. Hardwig and the baby went home and she discovered the child was not a son. Hardwig dashed to the hospital at once, but bewildered attendants were of no help.

The hospital said as far as it knew, he had Baby Hardwig, and nobody else had reported having a son at home who did not belong there.

Hardwig's attorneys said they would take depositions next week from hospital attendants and the doctor to try to find where the "son" may be, and who the little girl is. They said a blood test might help determine paternity.

MURDERS WIFE, TWO DAUGHTERS, HANGS HIMSELF

Clevelander's Mania Turns Against Family After Asylum Release.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — A 36-year-old psychopathic patient who was released from the Cleveland State hospital last December murdered his wife and two daughters before ending his own life by hanging, police announced today with discovery of the tragendy.

The bodies of Joseph Schartner, a diemaker and a former mental patient; his 31-year-old wife, Agnes, and their daughters, Caroline, 10, and Virginia, 2½ were found in the bedroom of a modest bungalow the family had just purchased.

The wife and two daughters, police said, had been strangled to death. Schartner had hung himself after cutting a hole in the ceiling of the bungalow berdoom. Detectives said the family had been dead since Saturday.

The Schartners, detectives said, had moved into their new home a week ago Monday. They were last discovery of the tragedy.
discovered last night by two of Mrs. Schartner's brothers.

Schartner, a manic depressive, was released from the Cleveland State hospital on trial last Dec. 1, Dr. Earl Kraft, staff physician at the institution, revealed. Dr. Kraft said Schartner had been a patient since Sept. 12, 1942, and since his release had returned to the hospital at intervals for treatment.

Dr. Kraft described Schartner a manic depressive, whose mania turned upon his wife. He denied Schartner was released prematurely, pointing out there were 700 such patients out on trial.

The state hospital physician said the patients diagnosis showed he had suicidal tendencies but no homicidal tendencies. Originally, Dr. Kraft said, Schartner blamed his wife for his troubles and complained that she was not taking care of the children properly.

Police records revealed that Schartner had been jailed last August on assault charges brought by his wife. He was held in the psychopathic ward in county jail and subsequently adjudged insane and sent to the State hospital.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—The rider in an appropriation act by which congress has tried to shake loose from the payroll three political house pets of the New Deal may be a bill of attainder, as President Roosevelt has said, but if congress has erred in this matter, the motives of those who voted so were purely patriotic. This was a protest, voiced in exasperation against the persistent sympathy of the New Deal for Communists and fellow-travelers, who have burrowed into the very walls of government in Washington and in the bureaus out through the country.

Pegler

It was also a general rebuke to the defiant impudence of many men and women who have flatly expressed or convincingly indicated their hatred of the economic system, meaning capitalism, on which the American government is based and the only system under which those freedoms can exist which are supposed to be presenting, with our compliments, to all the other peoples of the world, with the notable exception of our Russian comrades in arms, who have other preferences.

The Dies committee has been blackguarded and derided for years. It is true that its methods under Martin Dies have been irregular, unconventional and unpleasant, approaching at times the cynicism of that memorable exploit of Hugo Black by which that vicarious nightrider established his moral and civic fitness for a place on the supreme court according to New Deal standards.

Nevertheless Dies has put the finger on many a covert mutineer on our ship of state and that fact, more than his methods, has been the cause of the uproar against him. Dies has accumulated an enormous file of information on thousands of individuals, including Nazis, Fascists and bigots of one kind and another but including also many friends and political proteges of the New Deal who have identified themselves with Communist organizations. In the course of his inquiries he has had very little co-operation from the departments and bureaus of the government and at one stage of the game, was openly opposed my Mrs. Roosevelt who took it upon herself to rebuke this committee of congress by entertaining some of the individuals under investigation at lunch in the White House.

Now congress is not pro-Communist. Even the majority of the New Dealers are just as hostile to Communists as to the Nazis of the late anti-American bund and they have been imposed upon for years by the executive branch of the government in its partiality to individuals including some who answer all the specification and lack only the political label. The men who make up the two houses of congress are not fools and, like the newspapermen and others who have learned their way around Washington, they know what goes on. They have seen special pets of the New Deal party bounce from bureau to bureau and, finally, they just got good and sore and hopped on three individuals whom they have identified, rightly or wrongly, but to their own strong conviction, as fellow-travelers.

In attacking this action as usurpation of the executive function, the president may be legally correct but, remembering his own usurpation of the legislative function in the case of the salary limitation within the last year, it is easier to believe that the effect is more offensive to him than the quality of the act.

The effect is to publicize to the people the strong affection of the New Deal for people who see little good in and less hope for the preservation of the form of government which was entrusted to Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and who have tried to junk or alter it and with considerable success to date. Mr. Roosevelt may be able to keep on the payrolls the three relatively unimportant and harmless individuals who were singled out for the special attention of congress but the country of course will wonder why he is so devoted to them when he has a choice from so many Americans whose ideas are strictly orthodox and whose associations are above suspicion.

I would agree with those who say that communism is not dangerous in the United States if the Communists had to stand alone. But in appraising communism as a menace it must be kept in mind that they do not stand alone but have always received important aid and comfort from the New Deal administration.

DIES IN WILLARD

Carl H. Strahm, III For Year, Was Store Proprietor.

WILLARD — Proprietor of the Ben Franklin store here, Carl H. Strahm, 64, died at Municipal hospital early today following an illness of the past year.

He was a member of the hospital board of trustees, the Masonic order, the Rotary club and the Elks.

Surviving are his widow, Nellie, and four sisters, Mrs. Laura Rober and Mrs. J. A. Nourse, both of Kenton, Miss Minnie Strahm, Cleveland, and Mrs. Wilmer Lyman, Crestline.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. Friday at the Fink funeral home by Rev. W. L. Margard, pastor of the First Reformed church of Crestline. Burial will be in Kenton.

FLAMES DESTROY BARN AT WILLARD

WILLARD — Spontaneous combustion was believed to have caused a fire last night which destroyed a large barn on the M. C. Sutton farm on U. S. route 224, east of New Haven.

Nine hogs, 150 bushels of wheat and about 30 loads of new mown hay, the last of which was placed in the barn yesterday were destroyed.

Members of the family discovered the fire shortly after 10:30 p. m. when they were awakened by the barking of a pet dog.

The Willard fire department responded and poured water on the house and other out buildings to keep sparks from igniting them.

FOUND GAGGED

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Found bound and gagged with his own ties and handkerchiefs in Central Parkway Y. M. C. A. today, Earl M. Gaines, 32, of Portsmouth, O., told police he had been robbed of $25 in his room there by a young "zoot suit" bandit armed with a blue steel revolver.

OHIO TRAFFIC DEATHS HALVED

State Has 2,887 Accidents In '43 Compared With 6,077 In '42.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Traffic deaths on rural Ohio highways declined 48 per cent during the first half of 1943, compared to the corresponding period last year, State Highway Director Hal G. Sours reported today.

To July 1, traffic accidents on state roads outside cities took 141 lives, against 171 in 1942.

"If the downward trend continues," said Sours, "the number of highway deaths this year should be about 250 under the 1942 total of 550."

There were 2,887 traffic accidents reported on country roads during the six-month period, compared to 6,077 to July 1, 1942, a decline of 52 per cent.

A corresponding reduction in the number of persons injured also was recorded this year. There were 2,135 persons hurt in traffic mishaps to July 1, against 4,782 in the 1942 period.

Pedestrian fatalities on Ohio's war-busy highways have decreased only 20 per cent, Sours noted. Thirty-nine pedestrians were killed on rural roads during the first half of the year.

GLENN BABCOCK TAKEN BY DEATH

New Haven Township Farmer Stricken Today at 58.

WILLARD — A New Haven township farmer, Glenn Babcock, 58, died early today at Municipal hospital.

Surviving are his widow, Lottie; two daughters, Mrs. Clarence Nestor, Norwalk, and Mrs. Robert Miller, New Haven; three sons, Leroy, Richard and Roger, all at home, and a brother, Dr. Carl Babcock, Plymouth.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Secor funeral home. Rev. P. J. Garcia of Monroeville will officiate. Burial will be in New Haven cemetery.

If you hear an explosion and then an ambulance whistle about 7:30 p. m. today, it won't be an air raid, but a simulated bombing of the city's downtown area. Three men who are going to pretend to be injured in an air raid will be picked up by civilian defense first aid workers from the Ohio Public Service company first aid post in a public exhibition in Central park. The "wounded" men will be reported by air raid wardens, given first aid treatment, and then taken away in an ambulance. Civilian defense workers today were trying to figure out a means of setting off a harmless blast to signal the opening of the test.

Too young to fight but anxious to do their part, Mansfield youngsters have been offering their help to Richland county farmers. In answer to an advertisement in the News-Journal asking that all men, women, boys and girls possible register for the farm labor program, ten 11 and 15 year olds trooped to the county extension office to offer their services. Though places have not yet been found for these willing boys and girls, George Ganyard, extension agent, said he hopes to do so in the near future.

Mansfield students at Ohio State university are continuing to give the city reason to be proud. An announcement from the university says five Mansfielders have been named to the college of education honorroll for the entire year. The five Mansfielders are Betty M. Bell, Marjorie Boals, Janet A. Baughman, Lois M. Robinson and Margaret E. Whitten. Cleveland placed only six on the honor list in the college of education. Akron placed only three, Canton, three, Dayton, three and Marion, four. Josephine Hughes, another local student, was named on the college of agriculture honor roll.

DESERTERS' 'BLISS' ENDS

AWOL Soldier, WAC Finance 9-Day Honeymoon With Worthless Checks.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO The gay "nine-day "deserters' honeymoon" of a soldier and a WAC, both A. W. O. L., wound up dismally today with the two in the custody of military authorities.

The couple, arrested in their honeymoon suite in a Chicago loop hotel, admitted passing $3,100 in bogus checks to finance their brief fling at romance, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said.

The soldier is Scott Holler, 35, of Fort Jay, N. Y., who was wearing the uniform of a staff sergeant when arrested, although the army rates him as a private. Holler originally was from Cleveland, O.

His bride is WAC Ruth Clare whose home is in Thrush, Kas., FBI agents said. She joined the WAACs in March and was stationed at Newark, N. J. Holler enlisted in the army in 1940. They were married in New York City after a four-day courtship and promptly embarked on their ill-fated honeymoon.

They used the proceeds of the worthless checks, authorities said, to buy honeymoon clothes and luggage and to finance their travels.

Federal agents said most of the checks were on the Manufacturers' Trust Company of New York City. They said Saks Fifth Avenue Shop in New York accepted one $1,100 check for five swank traveling bags.

U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker ordered them held by the U. S marshal for army authorities in New York City at the request of Maj. Gen H. S. Aurand of the 6th Service command. Later they were turned over to military authorities.

STRICKEN AT 82

Mrs. Kitty Fisk Was Former Resident of Newark.

Mrs. Kitty Fisk, 82, died Tuesday at the Hammond nursing home, Park avenue west, following a lingering illness.

Surviving are two sons, J. Howard, Newark, and Rupert, Mansfield; one sister, Mrs. Cora Bingham, Mantua, and four grandchildren.

The body was taken to the Finefrock funeral home and will be sent to the Gutlip and Henderson funeral home in Newark where services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon. Burial will be in Cedar Hill cemetery, Newark.

CASE NOLLED

Non-Support Charge Dropped By Plaintiff Today.

Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell today nolled the case of Charles Brooks charged with non-support.

Charges brought against Brooks by his wife for failure to support his six-month-old daughter were dropped by the plaintiff immediately preceding the date set for his trial in common pleas court.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Milton Berle, comedian-star of the Ziegfeld Follies, thinks that writing a column—especially this one—would be a cinch. So he has dashed off his version of "Miss Midnight's Diary," which he calls "Mr. Midnight's Scratchpad." I suspect it's a parody. That nothing he writes in it is true.)

Mansfield mitt slinger Al Sauer is now light-heavyweight boxing champion of the Alaska Golden Gloves tournament.

This news comes to you from the Kodiak Bear, official publication of Fort Greely, Alaska, sent by "Pug" Puglisi, former Ashland high and Ashland college grid star, to Bill McKee, Ashland sports scribe, who sent it along to me.

The Kodiak Bear to "Pug" Puglisi to Bill McKee, to the Old Podger, to you. This is not a double play, it's a rundown between third and home.

Says the Kodiak Bear: "The seventh bout, for the light-heavyweight title was by far the roughest fight of the evening, between Navy Al Sauer, at 175 pounds, from Mansfield, Ohio, and Army M. P. Harry Sherman, at 174¾ pounds, from Neal, Kansas.

"Neal took more punishment than a dozen men should take. He was down for the count of nine in the first round, and took the count of nine twice in the third, and on the third knockdown Referee Lt. Vic Kemp stopped the bout as Sherman had taken too much punishment, although he was still game. A. T. K. O. was awarded to Sauer."

That Navy victory should have been popular, even with the Army. An M. P. getting bounced around that way.

It was a big day for Ohio fighters in the Alaska tournament.

Don Gensley, 157, of Canton, won the middlweight crown for the Navy over Army Mountaineer Owen Bosworth of Elkins, W. Va.

And Army Pete DeSantis of Lorain took the heavyweight toga from Navy Broncho Ruano of Ventura, Calif.

And what did these Ohioans get, besides the honor and the glory? A $50 war bond for each of them.

Cub reporter Pete Damon, covering the bouts, reported:

"The first so-called bout was between two service men, one dressed as the Navy goat and one as the Army mule. The referee was dressed as that scrawny character, Tojo.

"Where the Navy goat and Army mule spied the referee, they forgot they were opponents, and took out after Tojo. The goat and mule were hot on Tojo's heels when the little shrimp yells out: 'Hirohito, help me, help me!' But no one came to his rescue and Tojo was left at the mercy of the Army and Navy, and there was very little of this."

Maybe you think the Weather ear on the N-J front page is sometimes somewhat dizzy. Read the one in the Kodiak Bear!

VAUGHN RETURNS TO ACTION WITH BUMS

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Arky Vaughan, slugging third baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has been receiving treatment for stomach ulcers in a New York hospital, will rejoin his teammates today in time to play in one of two games scheduled with the Cincinnati Reds, Manager Leo Durocher announced.

Vaughan left the club after the double-header at Boston last Sunday to enter Memorial hospital, New York City.

FOSTORIA ATHLETE COACHES AT LIMA

FOSTORIA — (U.P.) — Richard (Dick) Peter, of Fostoria, has been appointed physical education teacher, track coach and assistant football and basketball coach at Lima Centrl high school, it was announced today.

Peter, former Wittenberg college athlete, has coached for the past four years at Hopewell Loudon school, Bascom.

COST HIM RECORD

BERKELEY, Calif. —(AP)— Hal Davis, 100-yard dash speed king, believes some of the old track rules should be changed, particularly the one about starting blocks. He made a world's record of 9.4 for the hundred but it wasn't allowed because he used a type of starting block which did not permit his toes to touch the ground.

Striped bass weighing as much as 60 pounds have been taken from the St. John river above Fredericton.

Redlegs Ready for Durocher

Gee-Gee Walker Has Fists Doubled Up.

CINCINNATI— (AP) —A doubleheader with a possible fireworks display is on the schedule today as the Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Dodgers open a four game series.

The aforementioned fireworks is said to be in the offing if, and when, Leo (The Lip) Durocher, Brooklyn manager, begins a vituperative onslaught against the Reds in general and Gee Gee Walker and Clyde Shoun in particular.

These two Redleg representatives maintain "The Lip" abused them more than somewhat when the Brooks were playing host to the Reds on the banks of the Gowanus canal earlier in the month.

Just what sort of action they will take, neither would say for sure, but Walker, usually a peace-loving, mild-mannered fellow, stated:

"Durocher called me names that I wouldn't allow my own brother to call me. If he repeats them here the next few days, he and I are going to lock horns."

Shoun merely mumbled something unintelligible when "The Lip's" name was mentioned.

Manager Bill McKechnie announced he would start his pair of aces—namely Ray Starr and Elmer Riddle.

Kirby Higbe will pitch one of the games for the Brooks while Les Webber or Ed Head will serve them up in the other.

MEET ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA— (AP) —Now two games out of the first division, the Cleveland Indians today take on the Athletics in a series opener that launches the Tribe's second eastern trip of the season.

The Philadelphia stay includes today's matinee, a night game tomorrow and another afternoon game Friday. The Redskins then depart for Washington, New York and Boston, in that order—a 15-game trek in all.

Al Smith is Manager Lou Boudreau's nominee for pitching chores today, seeking his ninth victory against three losses.

GAINS POSSESSION OF FOUR NET TITLES

ELIZABETH, N. J.—(U.P.)— Charley Oliver of Persh Amboy, N. J., ranked today as the nation's top interscholastic tennis ace with possession of four net crowns.

Oliver annexed his fourth crown of the season as he beat Edward Ray of Taft, Tex., yesterday, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3, in the final of the first annual Elmora invitation junior singles tournament.

Oliver also holds the national interscholastic title, the Taft interscholastic singles crown and the Essex county junior championship.

DARTMOUTH HOPES

HANOVER, N. H.—(AP)—Seven lettermen and 11 other promising members of last year's Big Green football squad are among the naval and marine reservists ordered to Dartmouth. Dartmouth's 1943 grid prospects are almost entirely dependent on the availability of naval and marine students.

Rabbit Maranville, when he was 40 and on crutches, said he'd play ball again, and he did.

ALSAB SCHEDULED AT NARRAGANSETT

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—(INS)— Alsab, conqueror of Whirlaway at Narragansett park last year, will return to the scene of his triumph to race in the $25,000 added Narragansett Special September 18.

Narragansett officials made the announcement today following a telephone conversation with August "Sarge" Swenke, trainer of Mrs. Albert Sabath's sensational bargain horse.

"Discount anything you hear or read about Alsab being retired," Swenke was quoted as saying. "It's true that he has not been out yet this year, but he is going to the races again very soon."

Biggest Golf Show Opened

Tam O'Shanter Has Pros, Amateurs and Women.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO — (AP) — Golf on a tremendous scale — three tournaments rolled into one—was presented with theatrical setting in the Tam O'Shanter extravaganza today.

The tournament became the nation's biggest golf show of the year when the professionals and women joined the amateur ensemble which has held the stage since Monday.

There were 200 swingers in action—105 professionals, 64 amateurs and 31 women.

While the surviving 64 qualifiers in the All-American Amateur were sweeping through their first day of match play, the pros battled for 71 places in the $10,000 All-American Open and the women played for 18 positions in their tournament—both of which start tomorrow at 72 holes of medal play.

Blond Byron Nelson of Toledo, twice winner of the Tam Open, was rated as a topheavy favorite to repeat while Miss Patty Berg, famed freckle-faced red head of Minneaoplis, and Miss Betty Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., were favored to dominate the women's tournament.

Due to the list of pros exempted from playing a qualifying round today, none of the big guns in the pro ranks unsacked their shots other than in practice rounds. This situation gave the amateurs and the women the spotlight in today's play.

The windup of a qualifying round yesterday for amateurs installed Bill Chambers, a sailor from the nearby Great Lakes natal training station, as medalist with a 36-hole total of 145, the lowest card in a field of 250.

Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., runner up to Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, Wash., in last year's Tam amateur, sizzled to a sub par 70 yesterday, the lowest round of the tournament and placed him along with six others in the 149 delegation.

Runner up to Chambers at 147 was Walter Kroll of South Bend, Ind.

Sergt. Joe Louis of the United States army took a 36-hole total of 173 and failed to get into the select list.

William McCabe of Middletown, Ohio, qualified with 77-80-157.

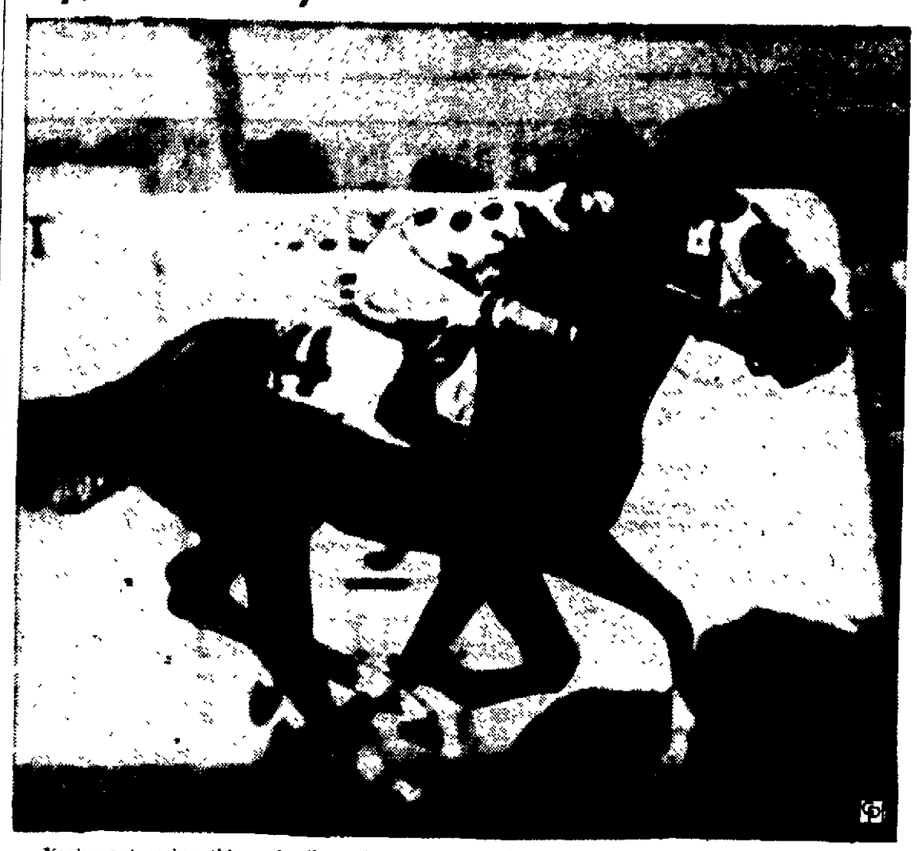

Edward Koski of Steubenville finished with 86-83-169, nine over the qualifying mark.

ANDERSON HANGS UP ANOTHER RECORD

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — A new Swedish record for the three-quarter mile run was held today by Arne Andersson, 27-year-old school teacher who has been assaulting world track records held by Gunder Haegg, now competing in America.

Andersson ran the three-quarter mile in 2:58'8. Paul Moore holds the world's record of 2:58:7 established at Palo Alto, Calif., April 17, 1940. Andersson on July 1, established a new world's record for the mile of 4:02:6.

Say, How Many Hooves Has This Horse?

You're not seeing things, brother, there are seven hooves in this picture. Four, naturally, belong to Bomberess, winning this race at Detroit. The others, we can only detect three, belong to Blue Teddy, which is running virtually a dead heat with Bomberess and was in almost duplicate stride when the cameraman snapped the very unusual picture at the Fairgrounds.

Bivins Ranks As Contender

Only Three Listed as Louis Challengers.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Jimmy Bivins, outstanding Cleveland light-heavyweight, today was listed by the National Boxing association as a ranking contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

In making public its new ratings, the association said that Bivins has renounced any claims in the lightweight division in order to join the heavies.

Bivins, Billy Conn and Melio Bettina, are the only three listed in the ratings as logical contenders for the title now frozen because Louis is in the service.

The NBA made little changes Most of the titles have been frozen. Gus Lesnevich, light-heavyweight champ, Tony Zale, middleweight king and Freddy Cochrane, are also in the service. Jackie Callura kept his featherweight title with Willie Pep and Chalky Wright listed as logical contenders while Manuel Ortiz maintained his rule over the bantamweights and little Dada was still held as flyweight king.

MONTGOMERY EASILY WINS OVER WILLS

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia punched out an "effortless" and unanimous decision over Frankie Wills, district welterweight champion, in a non-title 10-round bout at Griffith stadium last night.

Montgomery put Wills on the ropes in the seventh round and then breezed through the final three to win the decision of the referee and two judges. According to reports, he will meet Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh in a title match soon.

TO RUN MILE

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Gunder Haegg, Swedish track ace, will run the mile instead of the previously scheduled two-mile event here July 31, James A. Lee, Northeastern Ohio A.A.U. secretary, announced. Slated to oppose him are Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student; Les Eisenhart, former Ohio State runner, and Bill Hulse of New York University.

Title Fights Offend Noses

Slight Odor Detected In Duration Crowns.

By LARRY SMITH

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Matchmaker Larry Atkins "duration" light heavyweight crown seems fashioned to fit the head of any warrior who secures a place on an Atkins fight card.

Clevelander Jimmy Bivins first wore the diadem after disposing of Ezzard Charles and Anton Christoforidis in an elimination tournament.

James then knocked out Lloyd Marshall of Sacramento, Calif., while defending the "title." He received a broken proboscis in that engagement and announced he was given up the championship to campaign exclusively among the heavyweights.

Bivins' gesture in relinquishing the crown inspired Atkins to concoct another title fight between Marshall and Mose Brown of Pittsburgh. Loquacious Larry announced last week that Brown "ran out on the match" and Pittsburgher Curtiss Sheppard, who likes to be called the "hatchet man," was substituted.

Sheppard has kayoed his last four opponents and will have about a 10-pound edge over the 165-pound Marshall in their 10-rounder tonight in Cleveland's lakefront stadium.

Ancient Chalky Wright, former featherweight titlist in New York State, clashes with Lulu Costantino in the Card's other 10-rounder.

Gray Mist Drives To Randall Victory

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Coming from back in the field in two heats, Gray Mist dashed to narrow margin victories yesterday in the $1,000 feature grand circuit race at North Randall, turning mile hearts in 2:03½ and 2:05¾ in the 2:20 class pace.

Listed at 5 to 1 at the mutuels in the first heat, the Mist was driven by Gibson White to finish a bare nose ahead of Bonnie Volo. In the second whirl the Volomite-sired filly paced in to win by a head from Red Go, an outsider in the betting.

Norval G, favored entry, finished fourth and fifth, and Gipsy Guy, another fancied pacer, was held to third and fourth.

Big League Clubs Get Ready for Flag Drive

Mid-Season Trades Strengthen Teams With Chance For Pennant.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE MAJOR LEAGUES are heading into the home stretch today with plenty of opportunity as well as determination to shuffle the standings before the end of the season.

There has been comparatively little action on the field since the two big leagues took time out ten days ago for the All-Star show, but this breathing spell has been used by many of the clubs to gird themselves for the grind ahead.

More player swaps have been made in the last week than in any similar period since the 1942 campaign closed. The Brooklyn Dodgers have undergone a house-cleaning that has sent Pitcher Bobo Newsom to the St. Louis Browns, Outfielder Joe Medwick to the New York Giants and Catcher Dee Moore to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Many other clubs, even the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, have dipped into the farm systems for additional strength and some more moves of this character probably will be completed before the week is over.

How all the changes will add up in the standings remains to be seen, but both the Browns and Giants appear to be strengthened and hope to rise.

St. Louis now is just half a game out of the first division and with the acquisition of Newsom, who was one of the National league's leading hurlers until he became involved in the revolt of the Dodgers, may yet get into the battle for the American league pennant.

The team is nine games behind the first place New York Yankees, but only three and a half back of the second place Washington Senators. Manager Luke Sewell was given a new two-year contract yesterday and recently two of his star players, Vernon Stephens and George McQuinn, were turned down by the army, stabilizing the whole picture for the Browns. Their test will start today with the opening of a series against the Yanks.

Altogether 11 games are on tap today and tonight with the eastern clubs of the National league heading into the west and the western clubs of the American league invading the east.

The Phillies and Pirates beat their rivals to the draw with a game at Pittsburgh last night which the Buccaneers captured 1-0 for Truett (Rip) Sewell's 14th victory against two defeats.

During the rally the Pirates got involved in an argument with Umpire George Magerkurth and two of them, Bob Elliott and Max Butcher, were banished.

Reds Favor Free Germany After War, Manifesto Shows

TURN GUNS ON NAZIS, GERMAN REFUGEES SAY

People of Reich Urged To Set Up New Regime and Make Peace With Allies.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—A manifesto published by the National Committee to Free Germany today indicated that the Soviet Union favors a free, independent, democratic and anti-Fascist regime in the Reich after the war.

The manifesto—signed by German refugee leaders and addressed to the German soldiers and people—urged the Germans to turn their guns against the Nazi leaders and set up a new regime to make peace with the Allies.

The manifesto pledged the committee the overthrow of Hitler but opposed dismemberment of Germany after the Axis is liquidated.

Observers said that the manifesto was consistent with the Nov. 7 declaration of Premier Josef V. Stalin, which said the Nazi state and army must and can be destroyed but the German people, the army and state are indestructible, no less than Russia is indestructible.

Stalin's program called for defeat of the Nazi armed forces, annihilation of the Nazis and punishment of Hitler and others responsible for the war.

The newly-formed committee represents war prisoners and refugees German writers, deputies and labor leaders. It laid down a program for immediate action: Organization of army and labor groups to begin the process of undermining the Nazi front and rear and establishment of a new government to seek peace.

Unless that is done by the people inside Germany, the manifesto said, Germany will soon be defeated and destroyed because the British-Soviet-American coalition will not consider peace with Hitler.

The manifesto urged German soldiers not to lay down their arms but to have them to blast their way back now and overthrow Hitler. Otherwise, it said, the Germans are doomed to complete destruction.

It may be assumed that the Red army already has showered millions of leaflets containing the manifesto over the German lines and that it is also being broadcast to Germany. Among the signatories were Mantha Arendzee, Wilhelm Foren, Edwin Gernie, Wilhelm Pieck, and Walter Ulbricht, all former members of the reichstag.

The committee was organized recently.

Red Cross Blood Unit Has Busy Day At Loudonville

LOUDONVILLE — The Cleveland Mobile unit of the Red Cross had its busiest day here when 162 pints of blood were secured the first day of a visit here. All of the bottles were filled and 20 people were turned away for lack of time.

The slogan of the campaign was "Give a pint for Dr. Stein," a local physician who was wounded in the African campaign.

Red Cross Chairman Hubert Welsh attributed the success of the campaign to Rev. R. A. Hall and his committees and to the co-operation of the Fixible company.

POOL IDEAS ON 'YOUTH CENTER' PLAN THURSDAY

Civic Group Delegates Meet Thursday To Consider Recreation Problem.

Mansfield civic groups will pool their ideas on the problem of providing entertainment for the city's teen-age youngsters at a meeting sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Invitations have gone out to more than 20 civic groups. Edwin Balyeat, J. A. C. president said today.

"We believe that the juvenile problem is too big for any one group and realize that our plan for a 'dry night club' is only one phase of the many-sided problem. We hope that this meeting will help to crystallize and formulate a civic interest which will bring into play all community facilities for getting at the core of the problem," Balyeat said.

The J. A. C. believes, Balyeat said, that the best answer to the problem of recreation for the teenage group is several of these 'dry night clubs' serving various neighborhoods over the city.

"But there has to be a starting point and some one must take the initiative. It is our hope that we can find other organizations to join us in establishing these recreation centers, each run by a separate organization but coordinated by a central representative committee," he said.

In answer to adverse comments concerning the centers Balyeat said, "The J. A. C. does not believe that the establishment of a recreation center such as we plan will be a panacea for all juvenile ills and misconducts, but we firmly believe that by providing a place where youngsters can gather under proper environment and supervision, we can decrease the frequenting of taverns and eliminate the problem or 'what to do?'"

Berlin Dispatches Say Germans Are Fleeing East.

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press today described a great stream of Germans flowing through the German capital to places of greater safety farther east from the bomb-blasted cities of the west and northwest. Their ultimate destination was not stated.

Empty stores near railway stations were being utilized as resting places for the refugees, the dispatches said, and the zoo in Berlin's west end also has been converted to this purpose.

CITY SECOND IN BLOOD GIFTS

Ties With Sandusky, Euclid In Donations: Wellington Leads District.

Mansfield ranks second in the Cleveland district in the quantity of blood donated through the Red Cross mobile units in the past six months, the Red Cross executive board, revealed today.

Mansfield with a total of 2,426 pints averaged 152 pints for the 16 days that the mobile unit was here. The largest average for the district was in Wellington where the average for one day was 155. Euclid, Painesville, and Sandusky also had an average of 152 pints.

Also at the board meeting, the Richland county chapter accepted a quota of 2,160 kit bags to be made in the near future. The kit bags are distributed to servicemen at the ports of embarkation.

Reports for the month of June showed that 14,388 surgical dressings were made by 248 workers. The production corps made 299 garments during the month.

Dates for the remainder of the year when the mobile unit will be in Mansfield were announced. They are July 29, 30 and 31; Aug. 18, 19, 20, and 21; Sept. 13, 14, and 15; Oct. 27, 28, 29; and Dec. 8, 9 and 10.

Girl Scouts Close Day Camp Thursday With Own Program

Girl Scout day camp which has been operating for three weeks on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Averill woods will close tomorrow with a "scouts own" program conducted by the scouts and their leaders.

The program will include songs, poems and a talk by one of the leaders. The girls will also finish the projects on which they have been working during the camp period. Articles the scouts have made include barometers, block printing, sandals and leather work.

Total enrollment for the camp is 140. There are three brownie units, two intermediate units and one older unit with two adult leaders for each unit. The group has done outdoor cooking every day.

During the three weeks the units have taken hikes through the woods. One afternoon a puppet show was presented by the intermediate unit.

BOY, 10, SNAGS HITLER FISH BY WADING INTO DRAINED LAKE

Because the Charles Mill Sportsmen's club fishing contest committee didn't designate how Hitler, the big fish in North lake, should be caught, 10-year-old Hugh Crouse, 1034 Woodland road, was in line today for prizes exceeding $15 for hauling the foot-long bass ashore.

The city parks department drained the lake yesterday and the Crouse boy waded into the mud along the shore and hauled Hitler out in a net. The proud young fisherman knew it was Hitler, for the fish was tagged.

The Crouse youth said he was going to report to Leo Yuncker, head of the contest committee, Thursday to learn where to call for his prizes.

There were scores of other anglers on the banks yesterday when the lake was drained to permit workers to build a new dam and overflow at the east end of the pool. Some of the spectators went home with a number of carp and other species of smaller fish.

Park Superintendent Frank Burton said several hundred goldfish and a few big fish were taken from the lake and placed in the Central park fountain and Maple lake for re-stocking North lake when it is filled again in about two weeks.

Workmen had to dig out 20 feet of drainage line in order to empty the park lake which hadn't been drained in recent years, Burton said.

As the water level dropped, partly-submerged automobile tires, cans, tubs, boots, and a big variety of junk began to appear. The lake fish floundered in the mud until they were hauled out by city workers and spectators.

R. O. Darling, Mansfield contractor, is handling the construction work at the lake, grading the steep bank at the north side of the park and tearing out the old bridge which spanned the lake overflow at the east park entrance.

ONE FINED, ONE HELD FOR JURY

Man Found Guilty of Threat To Tavern Proprietor Over Beer Sale.

Brought into municipal court today on charges of carrying guns, one Mansfielder was fined $100 and costs and another was held to the county grand jury under $500 bond.

The fine was imposed upon William Stone, 143 Buckingham street, who was found guilty of threatening the proprietor of a North Main street tavern with a pistol Monday night, allegedly because the tavern owner refused to sell beer to an 18-year-old youth. Stone was charged with carrying a pistol.

James Mulligan, North Mulberry street, was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested by police Monday night at Sixth and Diamond streets. Officers said he had a loaded revolver in his pocket.

SEES BATTLE FOR CATANIA FROM WARSHIP

Correspondent Tells How Cruiser Dodged, Shelled Enemy on Shore.

By PAUL KERN LEE

ABOARD A BRITISH CRUISER OFF CATANIA, Sicily, July 20—(Delayed)—(AP)—The fight for Catania has developed into the biggest Sicilian battle for the Allies who are throwing in the weight of naval artillery along with reinforcements of men and guns against the stubborn Hermann Goering division and other German and Italian troops.

The fighting line as visible from the bridge of this cruiser runs just north of the Simeto river mouth.

As this cruiser moved to bombardment position this morning the constant thunder of field artillery ashore made a loud and insistent undertone to all ship's noises.

Artillery flashes ashore were easily visible and the never-ending rumble seemed to make the ship quiver even at a distance of five miles.

A misty haze of battle smoke covered the whole coast and drifted seawards, increasing steadily as the day wore on. At army request, this ship accompanied by British destroyers and Dutch gunboats shelled German infantry and artillery concentrations miles inland southwest of Catania.

Simultaneously, planes out of sight heavily bombed the Germans along the coastal road about a mile south of Catania. The smoke of bombs could be clearly seen.

Two gigantic explosions indicated enemy munitions dumps had been destroyed.

With several units ashore eager to have our supporting fire, the cruiser moved less than two miles from shore. As we swung north of Catania towards a little inlet the shore batteries suddenly opened up on us.

The shells, mostly 4-inch, splashed so close that fragments rained as high as the bridge, but we were not harmed. The batteries put up persistent, excited fire.

Shells splashed with an explosive "whoosh" all around the ship. Twisting and turning at high speed which nevertheless seemed like a tortoise pace, the cruiser replied at point blank range with all her heavy armament.

The two nearest shore batteries of four guns each ceased to fire but due to the great smoke it was impossible to tell whether they had been hit or merely feared to disclose their positions to us. The others continued to shell us closely with their muzzle flashes stabbing out like bright, dangerous daggers. Destroyers engaged them as we pulled out of range.

The navy's instructions were to shell indicated army targets first and to ignore shore batteries if possible—a sort of business before pleasure motto. The captain of the destroyer flotilla signalled inquiring about the batteries' accuracy. Our captain gave this cricketer's reply:

"Their bowling was varied with one or two inside swings."

Translated into baseball terms, this might read: "In and out pitching with some right over the plate."

As evidence that one was almost a "beanball," I have a small fragmet in my pocket for a souvenir.

Keeping clear of this point which Navigator Lieut. Comdr. Peter Charles Moseley of Newcastle named "Windy Corner," we resumed shelling inshore for eight hours steadily.

Most of the targets were enemy infantry and artillery. A rising pall of smoke made observation difficult even when we were aiming at target areas almost on the beach. The army, however, repeatedly signalled, "Thanks, good shooting," and once when the gunner commander thought our shots were widely scattered the army replied, "Good shooting, all salvos damaging enemy, stopping the music of his mortars, guns et cetera."

To a layman's ear, however, the rumble of guns ashore never ceased as the enemy, making his toughest stand in an airdrome area and southern suburbs of Catania.

HELP IN MINES

4,500 Soldiers Will Be Mustered Out To Get Metals.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Miners of vital metals are needed so badly that 4,500 soldiers who know something about the trade will be mustered out for jobs in the larger-producing mines.

The disclosure was made yesterday by Robert P. Patterson, acting secretary of war, who said the military program was being jeopardized by manpower shortages in copper, zinc and molybdenum mines.

SIGNS CONTRACT WITH CIO UNION

Westinghouse Agreement Covers 75,000 Employes, Leaves Wage-Question Open.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company today had signed a new contract with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO unit, which will affect the company's 75,000 employes, including those in the Mansfield plant.

Press dispatches from Pittsburgh, Westinghouse home offices, said the contract left for further determination the question of a general wage increase based upon cost of living increases, in the event of a change in national policy.

Any pay increase would be retroactive to April 8, 1943, and would extend to the end of this year, the company said.

Westinghouse official in Mansfield said they had not been informed officially of the agreement with the union and withheld comment.

If you ever need $25, $50, $100 or more quickly and simply, come to Household Finance. If you have a job so that you can repay in small monthly payments, you are welcome to apply for any amount up to $1000. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Example: A $50 loan repaid in 6 monthly instalments of $9.24 each costs $5.44—if repaid in one month the cost is only $1.50. No endorsers or guarantors are ever needed. We never make inquiries of friends or relatives.

SLIGHT UPWARD TENDENCY SEEN BY INDUSTRIALS

Rising Activity and Prices Reported on London's Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK—Some industrial leaders showed moderate recoveries in today's early stock market dealings with the general list inclined to irregularity.

Fractionally higher at a fairly acitve opening were U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber and United Aircraft.

In boardrooms attention was given reports of rising activity and prices on the London stock exchange in the wake of the Sicilian invasion and other recent Allied victories. The industrial share average of the London Financial Times was cited, this index having reached a new 1943 high this week.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A technical upturn developed in wheat at the opening today, the market displaying a scarcity of offerings. Bidding was not aggressive and the fractional advance occurred on light volume.

Wheat started unchanged to ⅝ higher, Sept. $1.44¾ to $1.45¼, and rye was unchanged to ¾ higher, Sept. $1.06.

CITY OFFICIAL DIES

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Charles B. Ryan, 61, executive assistant to Cleveland's city finance director, died late yesterday.

THEATERS

Discovered at College.

Robert Taylor, who plays Sgt. Bill Dane in "Bataan," now showing at the Ohio, was discovered by a talent scout when he was acting in a show at Pomona college. He was signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and played his first important part in "Society Doctor." From then on he rose rapidly to stardom. Among other pictures he has appeared in are "Johnny Eager," "Flight Command," "Waterloo Bridge," "A Yank at Oxford." He was recently commissioned a lieutenant (j. g.) in the navy air forces. He is married to Barbara Stanwyck, actress.

Thriller at Madison.

Mansfield moviegoers have a chance to see another of those eerie, strange, out-of-this-world pictures. "The Leopard Man," now at the Ohio, starring Dennis O'Keefe, Margo, Jean Brooks, it deals with the reign of terror that grips a little resort town in New Mexico when the escape of a black leopard starts a chain of mystery slayings. A son clears the name of his murdered father in Tim Holt's latest western adventure, "Sagebrush Law," RKO picture which is the co-attraction. As in previous western adventure starring Holt, Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards plays Holt's comic sidekick.

Love and War.

From the world's least known war front, China comes the story, "Night Plane From Chungking," now playing at the Ritz. The picture tells the story of the adventure of two Americans, an airplane pilot and a Red Cross nurse. Its locale is that Japanese-threatened China lifeline, the Assam road which winds from Chungking to the borders of India route of munition-laden trucks moving up to the front lines. "The Man From Thunder River," a western film, is the companion picture.

Boston Blackie.

Another in the detective series, "After Midnight With Boston Blackie," comes to the screen of the Park tomorrow. The other picture is "The Sundown Kid."

REDS CIRCLING BASE AT OREL

Advance Four to Six Miles as Fights Rage Along Extended Front.

the bulletin said, captured 20 villages in the day's fighting, including the railway station town of Voroshilov. On the southern flank a Soviet force took the city of Malo Arkhangelsk, 39 miles from Orel, the communique said.

Russian advances were met by stubborn resistance all along the line, the war bulletin declared.

Russians reported the desperate Nazi thrusts were accompanied by the same heavy loss of life and armored equipment which has marked the battle on the central front since its beginning 16 days ago.

The Russians also reported action at the southern end of the Kursk salient in the vicinity of Belgorod. Here the Red army has been busily engaged erasing the gains which the German army made in the opening days of the battle.

The Germans were hurling armored forces at the Russians and the communique said that in one engagement Soviet troops killed 400 Germans and disabled 17 tanks and three self-propelling guns.

CRASH VICTIM

Army Lieutenant Was Son of Ashland Couple.

ASHLAND—Second Lieut. Edgar D Rogers of Bay Village, near Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D Rogers, Highland avenue, was one of the 13 victims of an army transport plane crash Monday near Malcom, Neb. The elder Rogers is vice president and general manager of the Simmons Manufacturing company here.

Lieut. Rogers, co-pilot aboard the ill-fated plane was returning to his station at Alliance, Neb., following a week-end visit in Cleveland.

Surviving besides his parents, are three sisters, Jacqueline, Edith and Margot, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E D Rogers, all of Cleveland. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday in Cleveland.

CHAPTER V

Granted that he did not face his responsibilities and that he loathed being poor. Still Meegan defended him. Her mother had only sympathy and hope for him. Some day Toby would find himself and be a great success. Mrs. McLean thought of her son. Meanwhile she heard none of the stories of his drinking or of the cheap girls with whom he was seen. In his mother's eyes Toby could do no wrong and his jobs had been so unworthy of his talents and ability that she had shown no regret when he had lost them. Meegan might work as a stenographer at Hopkins to pay for the groceries but it was entirely fitting and proper that Toby have six months to recuperate from his operation, a perfectly simple operation without any complications. But that 'some day' Mrs. McLean hopefully anticipated was not in the future at all. It was in the past that would never come again.

She came up to Toby. He was wearing a light tan slack suit, its freshness spotted by grease. It would not occur to him not to wear a fresh suit even when he knew he was going to tinker with the car. He was perspiring and his thick dark hair had tumbled over his forehead and anger had whipped color in his cheeks. He looked completely dissheveled, thoroughly disagreeable and very handsome.

"I can't make the damned thing go," he said.

"Oh, you must, Toby."

"Would you like to try it? I'd like to kick the damned thing in the river. Oh, I'm fed up with it. I'm fed up with the whole business!"

So am I, she thought. Often. Why don't we face our issues and talk about them intelligently and do something about them? But we run around them and pretend they're not there . . .

She said, "Why don't you call the garage? If they found the real trouble . . ."

"Do you know how much they'd charge to come down here?"

"But we have to get it fixed. I'll pay for it. I need the car for my . . . my kindergarten class."

He looked up "Your what?"

"I mean it. I'm going to take children swimming in the morning and afternoon. I'll collect four and the pay isn't bad."

He looked at her, just looked at her, and then turning on his heels went toward the house without a word.

She found her mother in the kitchen shelling peas and spilling more on the floor than she put in the bowl. Elinor McLean, gentle and soft spoken, was as out of place in the kitchen as she would have been in an office and her children had come to expect burned meat and half - cooked vegetables from her efforts. Pretty, with her softly waved brown hair parted in the center and worn in a knot at the nape of her neck, her expersion invariably was that of a hostess pouring tea for her favorite friends. It was as impossible for her to think inexpensively as it was for her trim feet to guide her anywhere except to the 'best' stores and highest prices. Long ago Meegan had abandoned the budget idea and now paid the bills herself by check each month, usually sleeping little after that painful ordeal.

"Hello, dear," her mother said. "Did you have a nice game with Adele? Oh, dear, look at these things all over the floor . . . Isn't Toby telephoning?"

"I think he's calling the garage," Meegan said, pulling up a chair and helping with the shelling.

"Thank goodness, we're going to have the car fixed. But won't it be terribly expensive, dear?"

"Not terribly, I hope."

"I hope not, too, because we simply can't get anywhere without a car."

"Adele and I didn't play. She was upset about Clare's coming back."

"Oh, was she? I saw it, too, she said, ovbiously very pleased. When Clare had married Fayne Christopher a good many people including her mother, had chosen to forget their former disapproval of Clare and even Jerry's untimely death. Mrs. McLean went on the island this summer. They've been entertained by royalty, you know. And I'm sure they'll entertain quite a lot here and, of course, you and Toby will be invited. You are her oldest friends. You really should have a new dinner frock, dear. Try to manage it the next time you go to town."

"Have you made up the grocery list? I must go this afternoon. We didn't bring very much from town. I'll call Adele for her car until ours is fixed."

"Grocery list? Oh, dear, no . . . But I'll do it immediately The phone has been ringing all morning as though I hadn't read in the paper that Claire is coming back. Im going to Helen's for bridge this afternoon. That's why I though we'd have dinner about one and I wouldn't have to hurry about getting back to cook tonight. But of course if you'd rather not . . ."

"It's fine with me and I'm sure Toby doesn't care."

"Now about the grocery list. . . Let me find a pencil . . . What do we need? I can't remember what we need when I'm making the list but the moment you go I can think of a dozen things I haven't ordered You will finish the peas, won't you dear?"

Leaving the kitchen, she did not see Meegan's tightened face or the look of utter hopelessness sweep over it followed by a funny little smile.

During that week Meegan's group of children increased to the desired ten. They were little trouble, preferring to dig in the sand rather than go in the water. Thus no accidents or scares resulted. Each morning and afternoon when she called for them and delivered them she saw Mrs. Lester briefly and pleasantly but she saw Erice only at a distance. She wondered what Sue would say were she to tell her that Mrs. Lester's children were, miraculously, less trouble than Sue's. For the two Lester children had a natural desire to help the others and spend their time amusing the smaller ones.

And one day Meegan came home to find an invitation from Clare to a cocktail party . . . She opened it on the porch where her mother was knitting and where Toby was pretending to be asleep on the glider. And as she read she went pale from a sudden burst of inner anger. How clever of Clare not to let anyone see her until she appeared as a hostess and therefore at her best. How like her to plan a dramatic entrance into their lives again! Clearly, very clearly, she remembered the day Clare had left Baltimore. She had run down to the waiting taxi and covered her face lest any of her neighbors see it. But perhaps she was being unfair . . . People change and are sorry . . .

Her mother looked at her and smiled. "Yes, Toby, received one, too. It's this Saturday afternoon, isn't it? How nice. I'm sure it will be a wonderful party."

Meegan gave a quick turn of her head which caused her fair hair to stir on her neck. The hours on the beach with the children had tanned her. In the pink sharkskin playsuit and straw sandals on her bare feet she looked less fragile than she had a week ago.

Slowly she slipped the invitation back into the envelope.

Toby opened his eyes and smiled at her.

"Aren't you going to accept, Meegan? Sure you are. You haven't any choice, you know. Clare never did anything to you."

"That's true, Toby."

Their mother said kindly, "But of course you're going, dear. I know how loyal you are to Adele but that was years ago. Clare has made a brilliant marriage and you can't afford to . . ."

Toby said, "You don't have to like the hostess to have a good time at a party. As a matter of fact, there have been very few hostesses I've liked."

"Now Toby . . ." his mother said.

Meegan looked from one to the other. Yes, they would go, they would all go because not to go would mean that they would be excluded the second time. Clare was still giving commands not with a sliding board or swings or swimming pool but with a large and lovely house, vast wealth and a distinguished husband. She thought, I shall see Fayne again . . . and at the thought she felt a curious mixture of poignancy and pleasure. It was as though, as this was mad certainly, they had promised to meet again.

"I take it then that you're going," she said to Toby.

"Sure thing. Wouldn't miss it for the world. We'll go together."

Dean Says Colleges Should Enroll Non-High Grads.

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Because "higher education cannot demand that 'business as usual' be the theme of its wartime program," a Temple university dean insists that the nation's colleges and universities should enroll students who have not been graduated from high school.

Dr. H. Evert Kendig, dean of the School of Pharmacy, feels that "education, like business and industry, must make sacrifices and play its part in helping the war effort." He added: "The refusal to accept high school students who have completed only three and one-half years of study but have the recommendation of their principal and faculty, is a short-sighted policy."

Reasoning that acceptance of qualified boys would, in time, aid the present manpower shortage in a number of professional fields, Dr. Kendig points out that the additional educational training obtained in college would help a potential soldier seeking entrance into Officer Candidate School besides providing increased fitness for military service.

As proud a uniform as any man wears

It's not much to look at. No gold braid, no polished brass.

Just a plain pair of denim overalls—tossed on the handiest peg after a day of the hardest kind of fighting.

They're more than a little baggy at the knees, from constant stooping and kneeling.

They're sweat-stained and dirt-stained with the heavy dust of lime and fertilizer.

Yes, and they're grease-stained because the farmer, with all his other chores, now finds it necessary to be his own mechanic. (Those precious machines must not fail!)

But this is a uniform to be worn proudly . . . for the men who wear it yield to no man in courage, spirit and determination. It is the uniform of one of America's most essential fighting men —the farmer, on whom we depend for the food of life and victory.

prediction that
Sicily would be spared from conquest and the alibi of defeat —By superior forces on land and sea and in the air—already had been prepared by Fascist leadleaders in Rome, who gloomily spoke of the prospects of an Allied invasion on the Italian peninsula itself.

More than 35,000 Axis prisoners had been rounded up in the Allied drive and evidence of the hatred the Italians hold for the Germans was mounting.

In some instances crowds had to be restrained from attacking German prisoners as they were marched through the streets and the inhabitants habitually broke into cat-calls at the sight of captured Nazis.

Prepare Romans For an Invasion

BERN — (AP) — The Italian Fifth army command, whose headquarters are at Rome, had prepared the Italian populace for a "state of emergency" in the event of an Allied landing within its zone on the Italian mainland, a Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Rome reported today.

Notices posted on walls in Rome and elsewhere tell the people that invasion would be signalled by bells, after which they would be compelled to remain day and night in their homes or air raid shelters, the dispatch said.

Declare Pope To Move Residence

(By Associated Press)

The Berlin radio, quoting what it said was "competent Vatican circles," reported today that in the event of further air raids on Rome Pope Pius XII would consider the removal of his residence from Vatican City to one of the papal palaces within Rome.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, said the pope "wants to express that he it not only the head of the Catholic church but also is th bishop of Rome, and that he therefore is determined to share the dangers and fate of the city's population."

The broadcast was in line with the attempts of Axis propagandists to arouse agitation abroad against further bombing of Rome.

Claim Allied Ships Sunk at Syracuse

LONDON —(AP)— The Berlin radio said today Nazi speed boats had penetrated the harbor of Allied-held Syracuse on the east coast of Sicily, sunk two British destroyers and a 3,000-ton steamer and torpedoed an 8,000-ton merchant ship.

The report was without Allied confirmation.

Yugoslavs Open Full Offensive

CAIRO —(INS)— Official advices indicating that Yugoslav patriot forces have opened a full-scale anti-Axis offensive in eastern and central Bosnia were received in Cairo today.

Forces under Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch already have captured a number of important towns, including Kladanj and Vlasencia, these dispatches said.

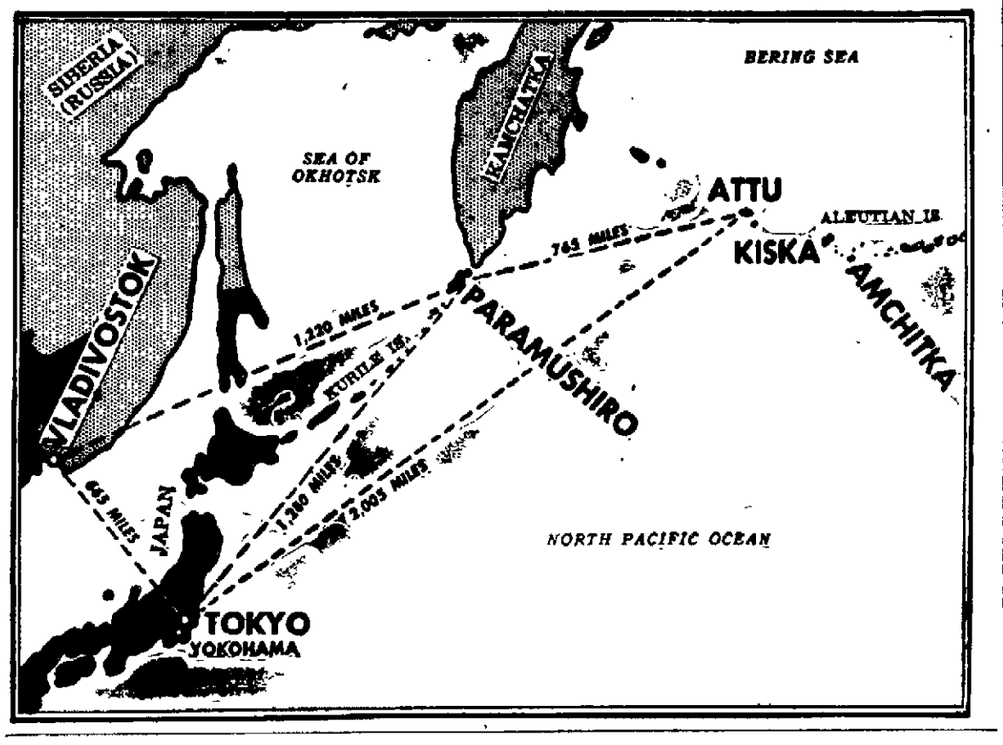

There was every indication the attack by Yugoslav patriots—the redoubtable Chetniks who for years have been thorns in the side of Axis occupational forces — was timed to coincide with Allied successes on Sicily, the bombing of Rome, and increasing signs of Italian deterioration.

Gen. Mikhailovitch launched his full-scale attack against Axis forces reported to be inferior in number after denouncing alleged "Quislings" who had found their way into the ranks of the Chetniks and presumably had handicapped his anti-Nazi activities.

U. S. Liberators Attack Jap Paramushiro Base

First U. S. raid on the major Japanese base on Paramushiro island, northernmost of the Japanese chain, is reported by the Navy. The attack was carried out by U. S. Army Liberator bombers, like that pictured at left. Although the bombers' base was not revealed, it was presumed that they took off from a field in the Aleutians, as indicated on the map below. Buildings were struck and near hits scored on ships in Paramushiro Straits.

U. S. Bombers Smash At Burma Bridge

NEW DELHI—(AP)—Heavy and medium bombers of the U. S. 10th Air Force yesterday heavily attacked the Myitnge railway bridge on the important Japanese-held Mandalay - Rangoon rail line in south central Burma, a U. S. headquarters communique said today.

Almost 30 tons of bombs were dropped on the bridge during the concentrated attack. The attacks were made without loss, the announcement said.

officials in deciding how the land purchase can be handled.

Mayor Locke said the city faces another problem in getting State Route 13 re-located to the west of the proposed airport site, a project that is expected to cost considerably more than the 1,000 acres of land that will be needed to enlarge the port.

He said he had learned in a conference with the state highway department at Columbus that there are no funds set up now for re-locating the route, a state project. He said, however, that the highway department gave assurance that it would go to work on the project as soon as the city has acquired the land.

The mayor said the route would have to follow a new right-of-way from four to six miles long, extending west and north of the present highway which skirts the western edge of the airport.

DUCE BEGS FOR MORE AID FROM HITLER, REPORT

Conference of Axis Leaders Hints Fear of Attack on Italian Mainland.

man air force, which is larger and better trained than the Italian, that the brunt of the fighting would fall.

There were two sides to the question confronting Hitler, observers believed. First: Would German commitments in Russia, the Balkans, in occupied France and Norway, and at home be endangered, and, second, is bomb-blasted Italy a good risk?

Washington Sees Hitler In Dilemma

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—More German Legions for defense of Italy was believed here today to be the purpose of the meeting between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler at some northern Italian point the day Rome was bombed.

Mussolini, his power hanging by a thread, was thought in diplomatic quarters to have asked Hitler to reinforce the peninsula's defenses with German divisions. Whether Hitler agreed remains to be seen.

Allied observers heard in roundabout ways some weeks ago that the Germans intended to desert Italy after fighting only a rear guard action in Sicily long enough to permit evacuation of troops.

The bombardment of Rome, however, and the obvious sharpening of the Allied attempt to knock Italy out of the war may have impressed Hitler more than a little. Signs of mutiny among Italian troops in Sicily, also may change the Axis strategy.

It would seem to be more economical in manpower for the Germans to abandon Italy and take up defensive lines on the Austrian side of the Brenner pass behind the natural fortifications of the Alps.

That was what Hitler had been expected to order.

But now it is thought that the fuehrer must realize the surrender of Italy would be a tremendous blow to the morale on his own front — if not in Germany—at least in the occupied and satellite countries. The Americans and British then would be able to march across Italy into Yugoslavia and establish the dreaded Balkan front.

Furthermore, Allied bombers could use northern Italy bases for assault against the war industries, communication lines and supply routes in Germany, Austria and Hungary.

For these reasons, it was felt the two dictators might have decided to make a stand in industrial northern Italy, stringing a defensive line through the Po valley.

Assuming this, it was considered not unlikely that Rome would be declared an open city, as was Paris when the Germans pressed on the French capital and the government fled to Bordeaux in 1940. Rome presumably would be as hard to defend as Paris.

Report Rumania Refuses Nazi Aid

ISTANBUL, July 19—(Delayed) —(AP)—Diplomatic sources said today Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania had flatly refused German demands that Rumania participate in the fighting this summer against Russia.

Antonescu was reported to have told Nazi representatives two weeks ago that Rumania already had made great sacrifices and henceforth would only defend her own borders.

The sources also said the Germans, in reprisal for this refusal, had threatened to turn pro-Nazi Iron Guardists loose in Rumania to continue anti-Semetic activity and terrorist campaigns which Antonescu suppressed late in 1941.

the jungle yells, "Help, I'm stabbed," nobody moves.

Few of the knife wounds are critical. One man cut five times survived. But the Japanese night warfare, first practiced on American troops in Guadalcanal and embellished on this island, doesn't benefit the nervous system.

Japanese soldiers swing from trees and scream and call out through the night. The first few tastes of this, and the knife wielding, brought orders for American soldiers and marines moving in on Munda from the east to hit for a foxhole at dusk and stay there regardless.

As many as a half-dozen enemy soldiers will climb the tall banyan trees around a camp. Dark starts the uproar. The Japanese holler, "Hey, Jim, where's your foxhole." There's no reply. They keep calling names at random.

Getting no response, they rattle the branches around their tree perches and bang their helmets, yelling "The Japs are coming—the Japs are coming." Or they'll say, "Oh, Bill, fire a couple of rounds into that bush on the left." Any American that falls for the decoy calls and gives himself away, is plunged upon by a creeping enemy or is on the receiving end of a 25 caliber slug.

Sometimes the Japanese crawl on hands and knees into a camp, starting a fight in a foxhole hoping Americans will knife each other. But regardless of the commotion, these boys stick tight to their own spots.

5. Action to provide for constant liaison between congress and the executive branch of government in respect to peace settlements.

6. Study of relief and rehabilitation work to be carried on in liberated countries by the foreign relief and rehabilitation administration under Herbert H. Lehman.

Taft said that CCC and subsidy legislation might be among the first of the problems to be tackled because of the recent bill calling for its liquidation by Jan. 1.

"I think congress has a great deal of confidence in Leo Crowley and will limit legislation to specifying and defining his powers," Taft said of the head of the Office of Economic Warfare.

While refraining from any detailed discussion of the tax program he is working out, it is Taft's opinion that only a sales levy with a food exemption will spread the tax base enough to meet mounting war needs and still avoid hitting low income groups too hard.

"can you people make GYRO-COMPASSES?"

THIS WAS THE QUESTION the U. S. Navy asked us on February 5, 1942.

Our answer, "We ought to be able to . . . How soon can we see one?"

With the coming of the war these gyro-compasses were needed in large quantity to equip the ships of our rapidly expanding Navy and Merchant Marine. They had never been built in quantity production.

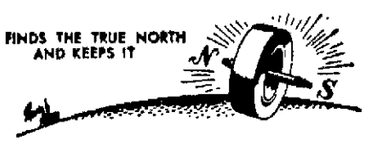

To save time one of the big thirteen hundred pound Sperry Gyro-Compasses was sent from Brooklyn to Detroit by fast passenger train. It was in our hands next morning and we took it apart for study, piece by piece.

The gyro-compass is an intricate, scientific instrument of navigation which unerringly points (and holds) true North. It is not influenced by electrical or magnetic disturbances that affect the ordinary compass.

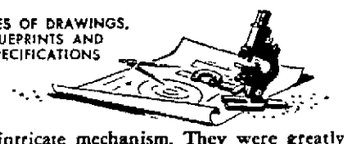

The heart of the gyro-compass is its large fifty pound rotor, a kind of fly-wheel, which is spun at the rate of six thousand revolutions a minute by its own in-built electric motor.

We found the compass to contain over ten thousand mechanical parts, with delicate electrical arrangements whereby the East-West rotation of the world itself, and the constant forces of gravity, are harnessed and used for direction and control of the spinning rotor.

Promptly we sent men of wide experience in precision manufacture, electrical engineering and mechanical processes to Brooklyn, New York, where they studied at first hand the technical construction and assembly of this intricate mechanism. They were greatly aided in these studies by the Sperry Gyroscope Company, Inc., long experienced in gyro-compass manufacture.

Study of the drawings, specifications and the parts of the compass, helped us decide which parts we would manufacture ourselves and which we would sub-contract to other companies. Our master mechanics made plans for more than five thousand special tools and fixtures. Our planning department began to order production material. We made the final selections of men from our organization whose abilities clearly fitted them for supervision of the many tasks of gyro-compass manufacture. We placed our first orders among three hundred and fifty subcontractors.

While these things were going on we began to build two complete compasses without waiting for completion of our regular production facilities. By the time these jobs were finished our manufacturing arrangements were made and the quantity production of gyro-compasses actually began.

In our production program we were guided by the same principles that we had used successfully in the building of cars and trucks. We believe that if each individual part of the machine (however intricate) is made right, and the assemblies of the parts are right, the finished product cannot help but be right.

In manufacturing the gyro-compass all of the thousands of big and little parts undergo the most rigorous test and inspection. They must always register a perfect score in their successive balance and precision trials.

When a compass is completed it is given its final test on a special machine which accurately duplicates the roll, pitch, and yaw of a vessel navigating a very rough sea.

When this test is concluded, and the final adjustments are made, the compass is ready for immediate installation on the ships of the Navy and Merchant Marine.

This very rapid calendar of events is, of course, our most gratifying answer to the question asked us by the Navy on Feb. 5, 1942,—"Can You People Make Gyro-Compasses?"

It gives us something of a thrill to know that for many months now proud new ships of the Navy and Merchant Marine are going to sea guided by Sperry Gyro-Compasses of our manufacture,—and that we have been able to master the art of gyro-compass making from a production background concerned largely with the engineering and building of fine motor cars and trucks.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1943.

Blessed is the public speaker who knows when to stop.

While congressmen are back home on vacation it would be well for them to do more listening than talking.

In spite of all the howling, it is now being noted that not a single instance of reduction in coffee-drinking was attended by fatal results.

It seems that there's nothing particularly wrong about officials squabbling—it's merely that the public shouldn't be told about it.

Cities Start Post-War Planning

SO MUCH attention is being given to what is called "post-war planning," on a national and international scale, that there is danger of losing sight of the fact that states, cities, industries and families are also obligated to do some planning of their own if any larger program is to succeed.

The past decade has developed a tendency on the part of many people, as well as some states and cities, to look to the federal government for direction and financial aid, but steady increase in taxation for non-military purposes and multiplication of government bureaus and personnel has brought gradual awakening to realization that people eventually do the paying for all public services and handouts that they seem to be "getting for nothing."

Mansfield, like other progressive cities, is doing some post-war planning, in a tentative sort of way, and industries now devoted to production of war materials are not forgetful of problems that will arise immediately after the war when they will be required to re-convert plants as quickly as possible to meet the present pent-up demand for consumer goods.

Practically all post-war planning includes preparations for providing a bridge-over of employment during readjustment of private enterprise and it is public works of various kinds to which many cities are giving attention, with assumption that financing will be done through combining federal and local funds.

Some cities are preparing lists of needed public works, and at least a few carry to the point of detailed plans and specifications. Included in surveys of needs are schools, hospitals, housing, elimination of slum sections, community centers, recreational facilities, and the like.

The war is still far from being won but it is none too soon to begin practical planning for the years beyond the war, and—for Mansfield people—this is a good starting place.

Few Enrolled for Nursery Schools

APPARENT lack of interest in proposed nursery schools, for care of young children of war-working mothers, should not be too quickly interpreted as absence of need for such facilities in Mansfield.

There is at least a chance that some of the employed mothers of children between the ages of 2 and 6 do not fully understand the planned arrangement, or they may feel that their children should be cared for without charge to them.

Wages at which women have been attracted to leave their homes and engage in war work, or other employment, are such as to make the 50 cents per day charge for care of each child seem quite nominal, and certainly to be preferred to neglect of children in the 2 to 6 age range.

Information required of all employed women, in the matter of dependents, marital status, etc., probably reveals home conditions and extent of the need of nursery school care of young children. Light registration for this service, in view of apparent need, would make such a survey interesting—and possibly helpful to the community in reducing a contributing cause of later delinquency.

More Blood Plasma Needed

NEED for blood plasma increases as Allied fighting spreads into the new areas and emphasis is again being placed on the importance of adding to lists of blood donors, as well as urgency of present volunteers contributing blood during the three-day month-end visit of the donor unit to Mansfield.

The call this time is for 600 donors of one pint of blood each, and present activity of this phase of local Red Cross work is to assure response by that number of volunteers at specified times on Thursday, Friday or Saturday, July 29, 30 or 31.

Blood plasma has already been so effective in saving lives of wounded service men that each blood donor is justified in feeling that his or her contribution may save a life.

Wealth Coming From the Sea

GENERALLY SPEAKING, the fishing seems to be good this summer. And not only individual fishing by sportsmen, but professional fishing. A newspaper man who spends his summers in Provincetown, Mass., reports miraculous hauls—as much as 100,000 pounds of mackerel and an equal amount of other fish per day. And not for one day only, but right along.

Professional fishermen are naturally rolling in wealth. And what do they do with it? Why, for one thing, they seem to be eating steaks along with the tourists, at restaurants where such a luxury costs $2.50 and the bartenders are worked almost to death handing out drinks at 50 cents apiece. Apparently Nature is co-operating with the war boom.

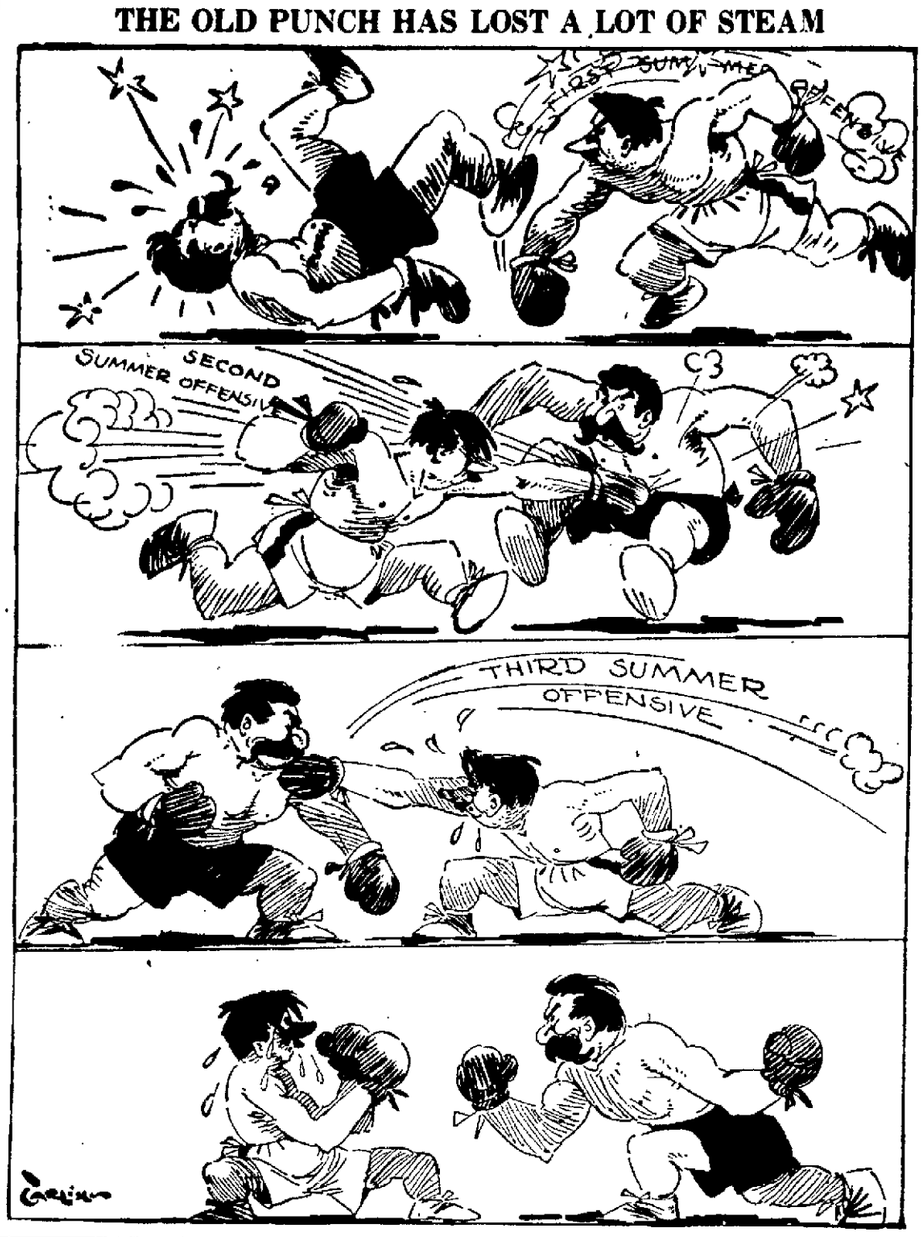

It isn't all reckless squandering of the sea's wealth, however. In the same locality there has been the most bountiful crop of strawberries for many years, and they were rotting on the vines for lack of pickers. An appeal went out for help. In response came not only about 200 army and navy men, but a lot of army wives, 50 Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts, 550 men, women and children volunteering from civil life, and so on, along with groups of regular pickers, so that the mobilized berry force totaled 1,600 people. That's good old-fashioned American co-operation!

An Old Rule That Is Still Good

THE PERFECT RULE for statesmanship was laid down over 300 years ago by the English philosopher, scientist and jurist, Francis Bacon. His desire, as he put it, was to see "the civil state purged and restored by good wholesome laws, devising remedies as fast as time breedeth mischiefs."

Well, the same old desire still exists, not only among philosophers but among people in general. But the purging never seems to quite catch up with requirements.

THE OLD PUNCH HAS LOST A LOT OF STEAM

Bombing of Rome May Shorten Suffering of Italian Civilians

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NOTWITHSTANDING the "wild beast" propaganda twist the Axis is trying to give to the bombing of military objectives in Rome, the fact remains that the highest humanitarian motives inspired this first raid which the Eternal City has experienced.

The Allied object was to prevent unnecessary suffering from protraction of the conflict. A quick surrender would shorten the trials of the Italian people themselves. It would put a tourniquet on the casualty list of Allied and Italian boys who must die by thousands if the battle for Italy were protracted.

Had Mussolini seen fit to remove prime military objectives from Rome and declare it an open city, the bombing could have been avoided. He had fair warning. But he has chosen to use it as a sanctuary to protect himself and his main supporters from danger.

Having cringed in fear of gunfire until Hitler had crushed France, the Duce stabbed his fallen neighbor in the back and then sent his warplanes to help finish off England.

It may have been his bombs which tore at some of the world's most historic and hallowed places—Westminster Abbey, old St. Paul's, ancient Canterbury cathedral and others.

Each time he has committed another crime against civilization he has crawled to security within the walls of Rome. There, too, he has shielded his political organization of gangsters, marched his troops, maintained the central machinery of his transport system and created sinews of war.

The immunity of Rome was accepted as a certainty by many, despite warnings from the Allies. A million Italians from other parts of the country are said to have moved to the capital to avoid bombing of their home cities.

Probably never before has so great care been exercised by bombers as in the raid over Rome. The pilots, navigators and bombardiers were carefully selected from among thousands of prospects. They were chosen not only for their military expertness but for sterling qualities which would guarantee that only military objectives would be bombed.

To make them letter perfect, they were trained for months and memorized the map of the Italian capital. The raid was in broad daylight so that mistakes wouldn't be made.

THE ASSIGNMENT of bombing Rome surely was one of the most trying which could be given to airmen. The skulking Mussolini had built parts of his war machine close to Vatican City. It was unthinkable that a bomb should fall within the Pope's domains—and none did. The bombers appear to have done as skillful a job as ever has been recorded.

It's to be hoped that the people of Italy will understand what has happened, and act accordingly to ease themselves out of the plight into which Mussolini has thrust them.

Judging from the enthusiasm with which the folk of Sicily are welcoming the invading Allies, there's a chance that the inhabitants of the mainland will follow suit.

Dave Boone Says:

CARLO SCORZA, spokesman for Mussolini, has just explained it all. Italy, just like Germany, was forced into the war. Benito and Adolf were just two inoffensive dove fanciers who devoted their lives to peace but couldn't preserve it.

"Italy, forced into a very hard war, is defending itself," says Scorza. And he adds that Mussolini is the bulwark of religion, putting up a great fight against the Pagans and Infidels of the United States, England, Canada, Greece, France, Holland, Belgium, Poland, and all those other nations on our side.

"Blackshirts, resist!" yells Scorza, putting on a typewriter blitz. Say, Carlo, the color of a man's shirt ain't going to mean a thing from now on. It's the color of his heart.

It sure makes a disgusting picture, Mussolini and his gang piously proclaiming themselves as innocent bystanders dragged into a war when all they ever wanted to do was to scatter sunshine and roses.

* * *

I'm with Mayor La Guardia in his flat charge that available beef is not distributed fairly but finds its way into black markets. It's well known to everybody that while thousands of housewives can't buy even a tough steak for their families, the choicest tenderloins and filets can be had in all the restaurants for a price.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL it was unkind of Eisenhower to go ripping through Sicily just as the CIO begins to tell congress how to win the war.

Phil Murray says "we've got to bring pressure to change congress into a win-the-war congress" and just then comes a bulletin "the American forces are rolling forward in Sicily."

Phil clears his throat and starts again. "We will bring the weight of public opinion home," he says and the radio announces "Rome bombed . . . American fliers report great fires burning."

* * *

Now Phil rushes ahead and pounds on the table. "We've got to have a congress that supports the administration's war program" he says and a newsboy screams "Army bombers raid main Jap base!"

* * *

By this time Phil has his coat off and his collar open. "Labor Day should be a day of national mobilization of the people's will for a strong home front to win the war," he says and a commentator remarks "the Russian drive is being aided by large supplies of American equipment."

Knowledge a Weapon.

Annually 25,000 deaths from cancer might be prevented in this country by use of available medical knowledge about this malady. Dr. R. R. Spencer of the National Cancer Institute gives information that every man and woman should heed. "When" is the vital word in the medical battle against this disease.

When a cancer is recognized and when the treatment is begun determine the success. Early detection is possible with those who have physical examinations regularly and frequently. What causes cancer is not fully determined. How they may be completely eradicated is not yet satisfactorily solved. However, when cancer is discovered early there is a good chance for the patient.—Toledo Blade.

WLB Debates Halting Collection Of Union Dues If Miners Strike

WASHINGTON—Postmaster General Frank Walker and Czech Ambassador Hurban called on the president the other day with a sheet of newly printed stamps commemorating the valor of Czechoslovakia. FDR immediately began kidding Walker about the fact that he was getting bald.

"Boss," replied the postmaster general, looking down upon the seated president, "you're getting bald yourself. Any worries?"

"Not a worry in the world," replied FDR, running a hand over his thinning hair.

"Well, you mustn't worry," joked Walker, "we don't want you to get bald."

Then he and the Czech ambassador handed Roosevelt the new stamps for his collection. The president, one of the leading philatelists in the country, examined the new issue carefully, complimented Walker on it. Then as his callers were about to leave, the postmaster general remarked:

"By the way, how about some money? We're selling these to you, not giving them."

The president laughed and felt in his pockets. They were empty. Carefully, one by one, he examined each pocket. He didn't have a cent to his name. Finally he had to send out and get some money to pay for the stamps.

Note: Most people don't realize it, but the president of the United States seldom has an opportunity to spend anything for himself. All his household bills are paid by the housekeeper. When he travels, an aide takes care of all expenses. So the president gets out of the habit of carrying money.

Stop Miners' Dues?

IF JOHN L. LEWIS could have heard what went on at a secret meeting of Assistant President James Byrnes and War Labor board members his hirsute mane would have shaken like a bush in a windstorm.

One thing seriously discussed at this meeting was a government stop-order on further collection of dues by Lewis from United Mine Workers if he carries out his threat to strike if the coal mines are returned to private owners.

War Labor Board Chairman William H. Davis, who has fought Lewis savagely all through the coal crisis, made it clear to Byrnes that he and his colleagues believe in restoring private ownership of the mines as soon as possible.

"The government is going to have to meet this challenge by John L. Lewis," declared Davis, "just as it has met the challenge of employers who have defied the government, even if it means imposing sanctions of some kind."

Byrnes pricked up his ears and asked what could be done other than enforce the Anti-Strike act to the best of the government's ability.

"Well, if he continues to defy the government," suggested Dean Wayne Morse, WLB representative of the public, "there's one way to make him come to his senses. We should be able to stop him from collecting dues. A union is not justified in collecting dues in war-time while it is obstructing production."

Byrnes replied that he did not know if the president had authority under his war powers to take such a step, nor if the president would take such a drastic step in any case. But he agreed with the WLB members that another coal strike must be stopped at all costs.

"Chief" Warns FDR.

MOST close friends of the president call him "Chief" or "The Boss." But ex-Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels is the only man in America with whom ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt reverses the process. Roosevelt still calls him "Chief."

As his old "Chief," Daniels still does not hesitate to give his younger friend in the White House occasional advice, and the other day he did it through an editorial in his Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer.

Daniels recalled that "in 1917-18 Woodrow Wilson properly called in Republicans for important war work. Nine-tenths of them used their war services to help turn Wilson's party out of power. Roosevelt has bent backward in avoiding partisanship by putting Republicans in key positions. He will find that in 1944 as in 1920 most of these Republicans will use the experience and influence of war jobs to defeat Roosevelt's party in the presidential election.

"But in war time, the big thing is to win the war by a united country. Roosevelt is regarded as a better politician (than Wilson), but he is taking chances."

Merry-Go-Round.

REACTION was so unfavorable when Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts agreed to report the war inspection trip of the Five Flying senators for the Associated Press, that Lodge will not take along his typewriter. The war department, among others, didn't like the deal, and the AP tie-up was finally cancelled . . . New England wise-crackers also claimed that if Cabot Lodge wrote for the Associated Press it would break the old Boston tradition: "Here's to good old Boston, the land of the bean and the cod; where the Lodges talk only to Cabots, and the Cabots talk only to God." . . . Real truth about OPA's stormy petrel Lou Maxon was that he had spent little time at his desk in Washington for weeks. His blast against the OPA when he resigned didn't hurt him a bit with his lush list of advertising clients . . . Isolationists Senators Wheeler and Nye are irked over the speaking campaign of Senators Truman (Mo.), Ball (Minn.), Kilgore, (W. Va.), Hatch, (N. Mex.), Burton, (Ohio), Ferguson, (Mich.), and Hill, (Ala.), to win the country over to a peace plan now, rather than make it the football of politics after the war is won. . . . These senators, together with Representatives Gore (Tenn.), Ramspeck (Ga.), Harter (Mass.), LaFollette (Ind.), Wright (Pa.), Monroney (Okla.) and Hale (Me.), will tour the entire country by twos. They come from both political parties, both houses of congress, and from both North and South.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE PASTURE

THE LONG wire fence about the burned over woods was completed, after much trail-blazing and hard work. Three strands of barb wire—four near the neighbor's cornfield—and it seemed we might have corralled our two obstreperous bovines.

My patience had been worn thin many times, my arms and hands had ugly marks caused when the barbed wire slipped from the stretcher, or had to be untangled. The two older boys had long brier scratches on their legs, and a darker tan upon their uncovered backs.

For the first ten days, after we let down the bars and drove the cattle through, they made a beaten path along the fence at the lower edge—so close that their impatient tails caught on the pointed barbs whenever they switched them. Back and forth, back and forth, a dozen times, looking for an opening or a chance to slide through and down the bank.

When they lowed at rest beneath the wild cherry tree, I wondered audibly why they did not relish tender beggarweed, and lush sassafras shoots that sent cheerful fragrance all along the slope at every nibble; I wondered why they did not explore the upper woods, where dank greenery would seem to make a bovine paradise. They only bawled and stared over the fence to where the grass seemed greener on the other side . . . not recognizing in the least that the barb wire was a blessing, to them and me.

When I was a little lad, my father used to winter a score of yearlings every year. Other farmers in our locality did the same. Around the middle of May, my father, three brothers and I would drive our young cattle from home and 'herd them out' across the ridge, on the larger mountain side.

For miles we drove them along a one-track mountain road, until they were so far away that they could not find their way back home. Father hung bells on several, by broad leather straps, so that they could be more easily found when he wished to salt them.

Until late September these cattle fed upon 'open land' and when, by long and difficult search, we brought them home at frost time, we could hardly identify our own, except by our brand. Those cattle thrived on mountain pasture that did not offer one tenth the value of our slope and woods.

Light Resistance Surprises Americans Who Had Prepared for Opposition.

SOUTHERN SICILY—(By Wireless)—The American assault upon the southern coast of Sicily was divided into sections, each operating independently under sub-commanders and with the troops brought here in separate fleets, each commanded by an admiral.

I traveled with the section that was assigned to the western third of the Americans' designated territory. We had to take about 14 miles of beach front. This force itself was sub-divided down into sections each with an equal amount of beach to take.

The assault troops found nobody at all. The thing apparently was a complete surprise. Our troops had been trained up to such a point that instead of being pleased with no opposition they were thoroughly disgusted.

At two beaches the opposition was trivial and soon over. On a fourth beach it was stronger and the beach wasn't occupied until after daylight but even so it was minor league defense in every sense of the word. Our sector covered the territory on each side of the city of Licata.

When I went ashore I landed about two miles east of the city, waded ashore, and hitchhiked a ride into town with a bunch of engineers in a jeep. Licata is a city of about 35,000 with a small river running through it. It has a big wide main street and a very nice little harbor.

The buildings are of local stone, dull gray and very old but very substantial. The city is so colorless it blends into the surrounding dry countryside and you can't see it a few miles away. A hill rises up right behind the city and there is a sort of fort on the top.

WHEN daylight came we looked at the city from the boat deck and could see the American flag flying from the top of this fort although the city itself had not yet surrendered. Some Rangers had climbed up there before daylight and hoisted our flag. The city hadn't been bombed. The only damage came from a few shells we threw into it from the ships just after daylight. The corners were knocked off a few buildings and some good-sized holes gouged in the streets but the city got off pretty nicely.

Apparently most of the people got out the night before although we did see two or three hundred on the streets during the day. All the stores with their Latin type shutters were pulled down tightly. Although we hadn't bombed right around here the people were certainly bomb-jittery.

During an air raid by the Germans I saw two soldiers herding about 100 civilians down the road to a prison camp and when the shooting started at the German planes overhead the people all took to an adjacent field and lay there cowering beside the little rows of grain that gave no protection at all.

They looked terrified and wouldn't move when the soldiers ordered them up and finally one soldier had to fire into the ground beside them to make them move.

THEIR defenses throughout our special sector were almost childish. They didn't bother to mess up their harbor nor to blow out the two river bridges which would have cut our forces in half. They had only a few mines on the beaches and practically no barbed wire.

We'd come prepared to fight our way through a solid wall of mines, machine guns, artillery, barbed wire and liquid fire and we even expected to hit some new fiendish devices. Yet there was almost nothing to it. It was like stepping into the ring to meet Joe Louis and finding Caspar Milquetoast waiting there.

The Italians didn't even leave many booby traps for us. I almost stepped into one walking through a field but it obviously had been dropped rather than planted. Down at the docks we found whole boxes full of them that hadn't even been opened.

The road blocks outside town were laughable. They consisted merely of light wooden frameworks about the size of a kitchen table around which barbed wire had been wrapped. These sections were laid across the road and all we had to do was pick them up and lay them aside. They wouldn't have stopped a cow, let alone a tank.

The civilians in town told us they were sick of being starved by the Germans and didn't want to fight us. It was obvious that they didn't but in these early days we have little contact with other American forces so it's possible maybe that the Italians laid down here in order to fight harder somewhere else.

ODD FACT

Newest thing in the line of damage claims is that filed by a school teacher from the Pennsylvania State Game Commission. She sought to recover for harm done to her parlor sofa by a pheasant that nested in it for a week.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Growing Flavoring In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
eleased by Central Press Ass'n.

The mint family is composed of popular, hardy perennial herbs and all or at least some of them should be utilized by the Victory gardener. The spearment and the peppermint are the most popular. Their foliage is used to flavor cool drinks and vinegar as well as jellies. For the very small Victory garden, however, the mints may present a problem, since they spread so rapidly.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, a novel way to grow mint and keep it within bounds is to plant it in a strawberry jar. If a strawberry jar is not available then a barrel with holes bored into the sides can be used or even half a barrel will serve the purpose. This container will prove decorative as well as useful. It can be placed close to the kitchen door, where leaves from the plants it contains will be easily available. All of one kind of mint can be used or a variety can thus be grown.

Any friend having a mint bed will allow you to cut small sods of mint, as illustrated, and these can easily be transplanted into the opening of strawberry jar or barrel, as the case may be. Either type of container, of course, must first be filled with soil which has been well firmed down.

MUNY COURT'S BUSINESS OFF

01 Cases In First Half of 1943 Represent Drop of 30 Per Cent.

Mansfield municipal court handled 701 criminal cases during the irst half of this year, a reduction f approximately 30 per cent from he total for the corresponding ix-months last year, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner's report howed today.

The report listed 318 charges filed under city ordinances and 383 under state laws. There were 76 convictions of persons who pleaded innocent, while 11 were acquitted.

Eighteen cases were dismissed, while the court conducted preliminary hearings in 36 felony cases.

Wagner said the absence of a arge number of Mansfielders who re in military service, the 35-ile speed limit, and gasoline rationing have combined to reduce he criminal cases so far this ear.

Farmer, at 80, Still Carves Wooden Shoes

GIBBSVILLE, Wis. — (U P) — Three wartime government agencies controlling rationing, priorities and manpower give no worry o William Ros, 80, Dutch farmer who combines tools and a trade brought from the lowlands of Holland by his father to meet he problems of shoe rationing.

Ros supplies his own time, work nd materials to turn out about 5 pairs of wooden shoes a year n the workshop at the rear of is home here. He has been making shoes all his life, as did his ather before him, but his skill ow is only a hobby to keep him rom boredom when work is slack n his farm during winter months.

His father brought the tools from the old country when he became the shoemaker for the first Dutch colony to settle near Oostburg 74 years ago. While he was still in school, William was taught the trade, helped evenings in his father's workshop and finally became proficient enough to make shoes himself.

From his own patch of trees, os selects a good straight bassood free of knots to provide nonritical material for at least a ozen shoes. He quarters the log nd cuts it to proper lengths, and hile it is still green, hews the ough shape of the shoe with a arge ax. The finishing touches re carved with other tools, and os says that while he now turns ut only two pairs a day he could asily step up "production" to our pairs.

GAS BAN KEEPS PARKS CROWDED

Most of Them All Booked Up For Picnics Until Sept. 1, Says Superintendent.

Pleasure driving restrictions are making Mansfield parks popular picnic spots this summer for employes of city industrial firms who used to go to Lake Erie or other more distant resort centers for their outings.

Most of the city parks are already booked full for Saturdays until Sept. 1 and requests for picnic space continue to pour in to the city parks department, Frank Burton, city park superintendent, said today.

The Gorman-Rupp company has scheduled its employes' outing for next Saturday at Liberty park, and the Hughes-Keenan company has asked for the same park for July 31, Burton said.

The park superintendent reminded picnic groups that beer and other intoxicants are not permitted in the city parks. He said employe groups frequently ask for permission to serve beer.

HEADS SOCIETY

GRAHAMSVILLE, N. Y.—(INS)—A record for leadership of a social organization was established in this area when Miss Addie Reynolds was elected president of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church for the 53rd successive year.

The election took place on her 82nd birthday and resulted from the unanimous vote of 82 members present.

THIEF STEALS GLASSES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. —(U P)— A mere "zoot suit" robber here boosted his professional ration to that of a "meanest thief" at one fell swoop. Approaching Frank Samuel Robb, who was standing at a corner waiting a favorable moment for crossing, the thief snatched Robb's thick-lensed glasses from his nose and fled. Robb, helpless without his glasses, was unable to give chase.

CAROLL GAGE BECOMES BRIDE OF JACK MENKE

Ceremony Takes Place In Richland Church of the Brethren; Rev. F. Blake Million, Officiating Pastor.

GOWNED in traditional white satin, Miss Caroll Gage stood before the altar of the Richland Church of the Brethren and was given in marriage by her father to Jack Menke Tuesday at 7:30 in the evening. Rev. F. Blake Million officiated in the beautiful single ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with a background of palms and fern, and illuminated by tapers in seven-branched candelabra. Greens were arranged in each window. Two white beauty baskets of peach gladioli, lavendar liatris, shell pink asters and light lavendar asters completed the setting.

The bride's off white slipper satin gown was styled with a low sweetheart neckline and high round neckline of sheer marquisette. The long tight sleeves ended in points. The skirt was extremely full and extended into a long wide train. The only trim on the gown was a narrow self trim flat rushing outlining the tight bodice and yoke line.

The bride wore her fingertip veil virgin style, attached to a quaint bonnet type headpiece of Chantilly lace and illusion, and carried a long front style cascade of gardenias and stephanotis.

Miss Sandra Gage, a sister of the bride from Toledo, was maid-of-honor. She wore a sierra blue gown of tissue taffeta styled with sweetheart neckline and below the elbow sleeves. Trimming of the gown was double rushing at the hip lines giving the skirt a bouffant appearance. She carried a cascade of talisman roses and peach gladioli. The gowns of the other attendants were fashioned alike. Matron of honor, Mrs. Charles Elliott, another sister of the bride, wore heather rose. She carried a cascade of bright pink roses and shell pink asters.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. William Gage and Mrs. Forest Cotter wore lemon lily yellow gowns and carried cascades of yellow roses and blue delphinium.

Miss Sue Menke, the bridegroom's sister, served as the junior bridesmaid. She wore a white organdy gown with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. The full skirt extended from the tight waist and was overspread with tiny pink satin bows. Miss Menke's cascade was comprised of pale pink carnations and white asters.

Each attendant wore a flower arrangement corresponding with her bouquet in her hair.

Mrs. A. J. Gage, mother of the bride, wore a frock of moss green with matching and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of gardenias and talisman roses.

Mrs. M. A. Menke, the bridegroom's mother appeared in a navy blue and white ensemble with which she wore matching accessories. White roses and gardenias comprised her corsage.

William Cox served as Mr. Menke's best man. Ushers were Junior Boleratz and Jack Elliott.

A program of nuptial music was played by Theodore Groman, at the piano, and John S. Humbert, violinist. They included "Meditation" from "Thais," by Massenet; "Ave Maria," by Bach; and "Salut D'Amour" by Elgar with the traditional wedding marches in their selections.

Soloist was Mrs. Raymond H. Oakes, sister of the bridegroom who sang "At Dawning," by Cadman and "I Love You Truly," by Bond. She was accompanied by Mr. Groman and Mr. Humbert.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Park avenue west road.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a long refreshment table centered with an arrangement of gardenias and tall white tapers in crystal candelabra. Presiding at the table were Miss Susie Janis and Mrs. Joseph Menke. Mrs. John Gage poured.

For traveling the new Mrs. Menke wore a two-piece fiesta green gabardine with matching accessories and gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Menke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gage, Park avenue west road. A graduate of Springfield township high school, she is the assistant general manager of the All States and Summit Transportation company.

Mr. Menke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Menke, Little Washington road. A graduate of Springfield township high school, he is doing foreign relief work in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception included Miss Gage and George Cooley of Toledo, and Mr. and Mrs. Pope of Oceola.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Fashions Originating In Hollywood

For afternoon, Laraine Day wears this rust colored pure dye silk crepe afternoon dress, with draped bust sections and center front fullness. It is an original by Bernz.

She's a la mode. Joan Leslie wears this lapel pin which suggests that the hunting season isn't too far off. The attractive pin is made of wood, clay and felt. . . . Joan also shows a two-piece coral and white polka-dot lounging pajama suit. The front of the jacket and waist are trimmed in plain coral crepe, while the neck-line features a double collar—one of white and one of polka-dot. Adding to its attractiveness are the large bellows sleeves.

All out for color is lovely Rosemary La Planche, Miss America of 1941. Miss La Planche chooses this multicolored jumper, with predominating colors of blue and cerise, worn with a blue rayon crash shirt. The insert and buttons on the front of the skirt are the same material of the shirt and give a redingote effect.

Mothers' Club Holds Meeting At Legion Home

Mrs. Walter E. Hahne and coworkers in a recent membership drive of the Blue Star Mothers club were hostesses to Mrs. Steve Jocka and her co-workers, who were winners, at a meeting at the American Legion home last night.

Card games were played during the evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Byron Chatlain, Mrs. Emma Smith, Mrs. J. F. Robinson, Mrs. C. C. Minard, Mrs. Biddle and Mrs. Perry Bush. The club prize was won by Mrs. A. P. Bowersock.

Luncheon was served at a late hour. Mrs. A. C. Forsyth and Mrs. C. C. Rowe, past presidents of the club, were presented with a gift by the members.

The next meeting of the club will be held Aug. 3 at the American Legion home with Edna May Henry, national senior vice president of the club, as speaker. Mrs. Fred Allaca and her committee will be hostesses.

During a brief business session, presided over by Mrs. Walter E. Hahne, Mrs. Harry Constance and Mrs. David Ellison were appointed to take charge of the sales tax receiving boxes.

Mrs. George Biddle, chairman, and her committee, Mrs. E. G. Deis, Mrs. Howard Almy and Mrs. Robert Jones served at the USO last night.

Gives Four Factors for True Beauty

MME. QUI VIVE)

No woman can resist the lure of cosmetic counters. Spread before the feminine eye are intriguing toiletries—eye shadows to impart mysterious charm, lip sticks to brighten the portrait, powders. Women pin their faith to these good looks props. They help a lot. They make the lady in the looking glass more assuring. But when one gets down to brass tacks one must realize that the foundation of the temple of beauty is built on nutrition, restful sleep, exercise and a cheerful temperament.

There she goes again! exclaims the Gentle Reader. Yes, and if you're wise you'll listen. We wish to state that without health, vitality, good appetite and a dependable nervous system no woman makes the grade. She may get by for a time with her camouflaged complexion, a heavenly coiffure and a cute shape, but she hasn't lasting qualities. She lacks snap and animation.

There are career girls who are undernourished because the noon hour must be spent in the shops, and because a fur coat in the mind's eye is more interesting than good groceries. Poor policy. Health is more important than sartorial trappings.

No use laying on the synthetic blush if the complexion is sallow or carries a gray cast. Makeup glorifies the good complexion that is the reward for wise living, sticking to health rules. It doesn't do much for the girl who is under par.

Sleep is an important factor. We all know the penny wise and pound foolish lady who spends money for elegant furnishings in her living room to be admired by guests, and sleeps on a mattress that has a sag in the middle. Restful sleep is impossible unless conditions are favorable for relaxation, mattress smooth and firm, springs springy, bed covering light but sufficiently warm.

There is the matter of living conditions. A home with many windows, affording light and sunshine does much to promote mental and physical health.

How one lives and the state of one's mind are strong influences in the cultivation of charm and good appearance. Gloomy surroundings lead to gloomy thoughts, chilling the soul, robbing the eyes, of the sparkle that should rightly be there, putting weights on heels that should be skipping and dancing.

C. L. Of C. Hear Reports Of National Convention

REPORTS of the nineteenth National convention of the C. L. of C. held last week were given Tuesday night at the business meeting held by the organization in the club rooms of the Bird building. The business session was under the direction of Mrs. R. C. Straub, who presented the delegates, Mrs. Joe Zimmerman and Mrs. John Schweitzer.

Mayor Lausche gave a welcoming address at the reception Monday held at Hotel Cleveland. On Tuesday, the delegates and guests assembled at Public Square for their march to St. John Cathedral where they were addressed by Rev. Bishop James A. McFadden.

Supreme officers and Senator Margaret Mahoney were speakers at the Tuesday night banquet.

Mrs. Eugene McCarty of the Cleveland Diocesan N.C.C.W. appeared before the delegates and talked of the expansion of the National school of Social Service. She is asking one million Catholic women to subscribe a 25c war stamp in the drive. Friday afternoon delegates conducted a drive for the purchase of Ambulances.

At last night's meeting, a covered dish dinner was planned to be held Aug. 3 at the North Lake pavilion at 6 o'clock. Members are requested to bring a covered dish and table service. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Catherine Schweitzer, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Minnie Montgomery, Mrs. Nell Dillon, Mrs. Mabel Herlihy, Mrs. Helen Murphy, Mrs. Catherine Vogel and Miss Katherine Zimmerman.

Group Holds Homecoming At Park Pavilion

A homecoming for members of the Star of Hope class of the South Main Evangelical church was held Wednesday night in the pavilion of North Lake park.

A covered dish dinner was served at 6 o'clock at tables decorated with garden flower arrangements. Mrs. Paul Cook and her committee were in charge of all arrangements.

Out-of-town guests at the homecoming were Mrs. George Finney of Galion, Mrs. C. B. Rule, Berea, Mrs. Albert Smith, Shelby, and Mrs. Roy Fellinbaum, of Ashland.

Guests from Mansfield, who attended were Mrs. Claude Specks, Mrs. Miriam McBride, Mrs. Ruby Newlon, Miss Edna Eckert, Mrs. Wayne Miller, Mrs. Chester Secrist and Rev. C. L. Kern. Each gave a short talk.

Letters were read from former members who were residing out of town and were unable to attend the homecoming.

During the evening, members and guests enjoyed group singing.

The next regular meeting of the class has been scheduled for Aug. 17 and will be in charge of Mrs. Ethel Warner anl her committee.

You can cut down the amount of sugar usually called for in rhubarb pie or puddings if you add some dates, raisins or prunes. The flavors go well together. Put about 1-3 cup raisins into each cup of diced rhubarb.

PIANO RECITAL GIVEN BY DOLORES FAUST

Student of Mrs. H. H. Clingan Presents Musical Program at Women's Club; Mrs. Bruce Rogers, Soprano, Assists.

MRS. H. H. CLINGAN, a certified teacher of the Ohio Music Teachers association, presented Miss Dolores Faust in a piano recital Wednesday night at the Women's Club. Miss Faust was assisted by Mrs. Bruce Rogers, soprano.

Miss Faust opened her program with "Solfeggietto," by Karl P. E. Bach, which was followed by "Etude, Op. 120, No. 7," by Duvernoy, and "Turkish Rondo" from "Sonata In A Major," by Mozart.

Mrs. Rogers' first group of selections included "Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton and Ernest Charles' "When I Have Sung My Songs."

Chopin's "Prelude In A Major" and "Prelude In C Minor"; "To Spring," by Grieg, and "May Night," by Palmgren, were played as Miss Faust's second group, after which Mrs. Rogers sang "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn," by Godard, and "Lullaby," by Cyril Scott.

"Prelude In C Minor," by Rachmaninoff, and "Chanson," by Friml, were played before Miss Faust's closing selection by Peter De Rose, entitled "Deep Purple."

Larkspur Club Elects Officers

New officers were elected Wednesday night at the Larkspr club meeting when members met at the home of Mrs. Nettie Mentzer. Mrs. Jennie Grice was hostess.

Mrs. Bertha Coleman, who was named president, will serve with Mrs. Jeanetete Shadel, who was elected treasurer.

Prizes in games played during the evening were awarded to Mrs. Mentzer, Mrs. Trout, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Coleman.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mentzer, with Mrs. Flossie Lee as hostess. That meeting is scheduled for July 28.

Couple Tells Of Wedding In Alliance, Neb.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of Miss Josephine Mogus to Pfc. Elmer R. Kells, U. S. Army air base at Alliance, Neb.

Miss Mogus and Pfc. Kells exchanged vows July 7 at the Methodist parsonage at the air base. They were attended by Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Walter Thomas. Rev. Simon B. Thomas, Alliance Methodist pastor read the service at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Louis Mogus, 95 Cleveland avenue. She has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Pfc. Kells is the son of Mrs. Emma Kells, Salem, W. Va., where he formerly made his home. Before entering the armed forces, he was employed at the Westinghouse. He has been in the service the past 18 months.
